Indochina War

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese marines battled bunker to bunker in a new drive into enemy-held Quang Tri Province in the far north Monday following President Nguyen Van Thieu's order for a counter-offensive to rout the North Vietnamese from South Vietnam.

Saigon army troops also ran into stiff resistance in a push in the An Loc sector just north of this capital. But another unit made a breakthrough in the central highlands, pushing an armored column through to Kontum.

The U.S. Command announced that Air Force jets demolished about 200 pieces of air defense equipment in North Vietnam's southern panhandle in four days of attacks.

Other American warplanes resumed strikes around Hanoi after a four-day layoff because of the visit there of President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union.

Hanoi radio claimed that four U.S. planes were shot down in North Vietnam Saturday and Sunday. It made no mention of the fate of their crews.

Thieu declared the start of a three-month campaign to retake areas lost to the North Vietnamese in the northern, central and southern sectors, but it seemed there was little Thieu's forces could do that they were not trying to do already.

On Highway 13 north of Saigon heavy fighting was reported as South Vietnamese troops tried to break through stubborn enemy forces blocking the road to besieged An Loc in two places.

An enemy artillery barrage put an end to a northward thrust that tank-supported rangers were kicking off 10 miles below An Loc. A senior U.S. adviser was killed in the shelling and many rangers were wounded.

Near that spot, known as "the Anthill," dug-in enemy have stymied South Vietnamese advances for more than a month.

On the central front, a convoy of 30 South Vietnamese tanks and armored personnel carriers pushed through to Kontum from Plei Mrong over a makeshift strip of road that substituted for the enemy-cut route from Pleiku.

The convoy, accompanied by rangers, encountered resistance at two points and four South Vietnamese and eight North Vietnamese were reported killed. The route has not been tested by supply convoys.

Soviets—Vietnam

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government dampened rising Vietnam peace hopes Monday, reaffirming its hard line by demanding that the United States stop military action against North Vietnamese ports and return to the Paris peace talks.

A report on Moscow radio and the official news agency Tass said the Soviet Union will continue to give North Vietnam "all necessary aid."

President Nikolai Y. Podgorny triggered renewed peace hopes Sunday by saying the Paris talks would resume soon and that the Soviet Union "will do everything possible for de-escalation of the Vietnam war."

Podgorny spoke during a stopover in Calcutta after four days of talks in Hanoi. He conferred with Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator in Paris.

Monday's radio report was the first disclosure to the Soviet people that Podgorny had gone to Hanoi. The previous silence perhaps indicated Moscow's desire to keep Russian diplomatic efforts on Vietnam in low key.

A flurry of diplomatic activity preceded the weekend optimism. President Nixon's adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, was head-stop military action against North Vietnamese ports and return to the Paris peace talks.

British Air Disaster

LONDON (AP) — A stall at 1,750 feet caused the crash of a British jetliner shortly after takeoff from Heathrow Airport, the government reported Monday.

The crash Sunday killed all 118 persons on board, including 32 Americans, in Britain's worst air disaster. Among the Americans were Kenneth W. Hoehn, 54, vice president and treasurer of the Columbia Broadcasting System, of Manhattan, N.Y., and his wife.

Aerospace Minister Michael Heseltine told the House of Commons there was no question of sabotage or structural failure of either the British European Airways Trident or its three jet engines.

The minister appeared to leave pilot error as the sole cause of the crash. But he did not make clear whether it was failure of the jet's automatic pilot or Capt. Stanley Key, 51, one of the line's most experienced pilots.

Heseltine said the aircraft took off normally from Heathrow and cleared initially to 1,500 feet. The last message received from the pilot, he said, was to acknowledge clearance to 6,000 feet.

Heseltine said a preliminary readout from the flight data recorder, recovered undamaged from the wreckage, showed that at a height of about 1,750 feet and a speed of 160 knots, the wing's leading edge droop mechanism started to retract and the aircraft began to stall.

The autopilot became disconnected almost immediately afterward and the aircraft began a rapid descent, Heseltine said.

Heseltine could give no explanation why the lead flap retracted prematurely.

British European Airways, a state-owned airline, has been flying Tridents for nine years. An estimated 18 million passengers have traveled safely in them, until the crash.

Push Anti-Hijacking Message

Pilots' Strike Comes Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only two major U.S. airlines—Eastern and Northeast—were grounded Monday by a one-day pilots' strike. Many foreign carriers, principally in the Western Hemisphere and Western Europe, were shut down or crippled by the walk-out seeking stronger action against hijackers.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations—IFALPA—said in London that about 75 per cent of European pilots answered its strike call, and about 50 per cent in the United States.

However, Eastern and Northeast together employ only about 4,100 of the 31,000 pilots in the United States.

There was no immediate explanation from either the airlines or the Airline Pilots Association in Washington as to why the two U.S. lines were shut down domestically. A third U.S. line—Southern—was hit by the strike when it started at 2 a.m. EDT, but its 300 pilots voted to return to work, complying with a court order upheld Sunday by the Supreme Court.

Before the courts acted over the weekend, many U.S. pilot groups—including those employed by United and American airlines—had announced they would ignore the strike.

In London, the IFALPA said it believed the pilots had made their point and that "really effective measures against hijacking" were on the way.

Agnes Leaves Costly Path

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP)

— Hurricane Agnes smacked the Florida Panhandle with 80-mile-an-hour winds, heavy rains and raging seas Monday, but its fury started to subside as it churned inland.

At least 12 persons were left dead in the wake of the 1972 hurricane season's first storm. Forecasters said more deadly tornadoes or flash floods were possible.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami downgraded Agnes to a tropical storm Monday evening when its winds dropped below hurricane strength. Highest sustained winds were reported at 55 m.p.h. as the storm spent its energy in the Panhandle's piney woods.

But forecasters said Agnes threatened to spawn more tornadoes to the east as it moved north northeast at 15 m.p.h.

Storm tides flooded streets in coastal towns along a 50-mile strip from Apalachicola to St. Marks.

Five deaths, and injuries to more than 100 persons in Florida, were attributed to tornadoes spawned by Agnes as it churned northward in the Gulf of Mexico. The storm earlier caused seven deaths by drowning in Cuba.

Coastal residents crowded into schools, armories and other sanctuaries prepared by civil defense and Red Cross workers. They were urged to wait out the stalled storm, but most residents who sought refuge returned to their homes as the winds subsided.

Dan Russell, mayor of Panama City Beach, said his community was spared major damage despite the high winds and tides.

Will Order Acquittal For Frisco's Alioto

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—A federal judge said Monday he would order a jury to acquit San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and two former Washington state officials of charges they conspired to bribe public officials.

U.S. District Court Judge Ray McNichols said that after reviewing the evidence presented in the five weeks of trial that he was convinced a jury considering such evidence would acquit the defendants.

As the judge finished, codefendant John J. O'Connell, former Washington attorney general, jumped to his feet, tears in his eyes, a smile on his face, and raised his arm in a victory salute.

Alioto, O'Connell and a former O'Connell assistant, George Faler, were charged by a federal grand jury on nine counts of bribery, conspiracy and mail fraud.

The charges stemmed from a series of antitrust suits against electrical equipment manufacturers Alioto handled for the state and several public utilities in the 1960s before he was elected mayor.

O'Connell and Faler admitted sharing some $800,000 of Alioto's $2.3-million fee, and the government contended this constituted a bribe in return for which O'Connell lifted an original $1-million limit on those fees.

McNichols' acquittal order represented the second victory for the trio in litigation stemming from the antitrust cases. Earlier this year, a jury in Vancouver, Wash., ruled in their behalf after the state filed a civil suit attempting to recover the fees paid Alioto.

Senators Consider Arms Development

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers told senators Monday their rejection of new American weapons development in the wake of the U.S.-Soviet arms accord could lead the Soviets to believe no further arms-limiting agreements are necessary.

"This is no time for unilateral disarmament," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as the administration began its testimony in support of the arms agreements.

Rogers pressed the argument under objections from a majority of the committee members that development of a new $1.1-billion Trident missile submarine and advanced B1 bomber is inconsistent with the arms freeze. They argued that each should stand on its own merits apart from the accord.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., called the Trident "an extravagant waste of money" and told Rogers: "for you to come in and say you don't get the treaty unless you give us the weapons is really not quite playing fair."

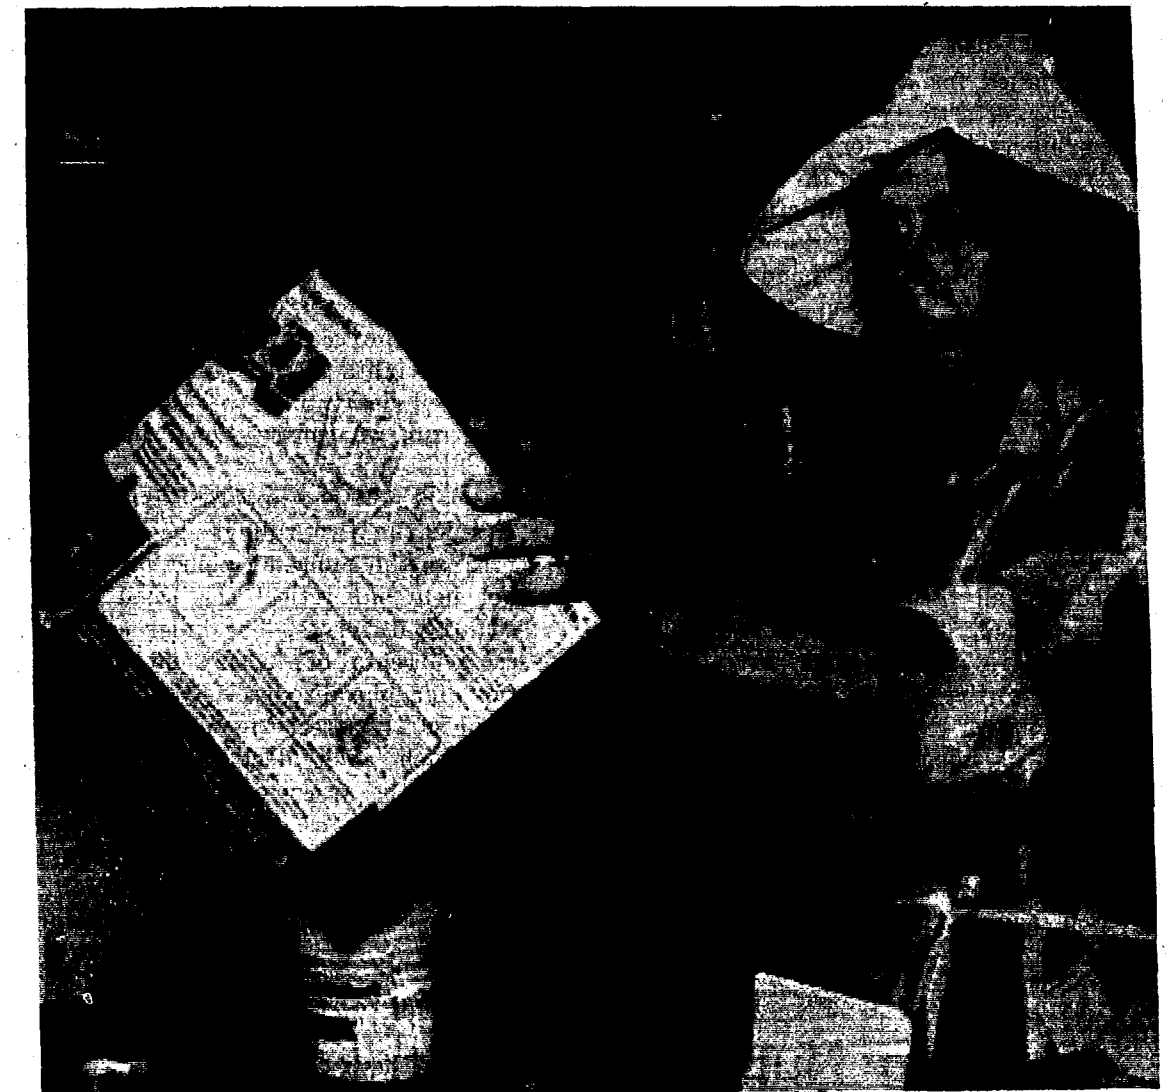

But Rogers said Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev told U.S. officials the Soviet Union plans to continue the full arms buildup permitted under the accords, and Rogers contended it would be a mistake for the United States not to do likewise.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he hopes the Senate can vote on the treaty covering defensive weapons before the June 30 recess for the Democratic National Convention.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said he doesn't know whether the vote could come that soon but the Senate should act no later than during its session between the two national conventions.

The treaty requires a two-third Senate majority for ratification. The agreement on offensive weapons requires only a simple majority vote in each chamber. The administration is pressing for approval no later than Sept. 1.

"It is important at this time," Rogers said, "that we should not indicate to the Soviets that we will unilaterally undertake arms reductions that will make Phase Two (of the arms-limitation talks) unnecessary."

Democratic Headquarters Break-In Mystery Deepens

WASHINGTON (AP)

— James W. McCord Jr., a former CIA agent seized during a weekend break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters, was hired as a Republican security coordinator on the recommendation of a ranking Secret Service agent, sources said Monday.

The sources identified the agent as Al Wong, head of the Secret Service's Technical Security Division.

Both Wong and an official spokesman for the Secret Service declined to confirm or deny that Wong knew McCord or recommended him to the Republican National Committee or to President Nixon's campaign committee, the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

The Secret Service is charged with protecting the life of presidents, among other duties.

McCord was on the payroll of the Nixon committee, a separate entity from the GOP National Committee, when he and four other men identified as having ties to Miami's Cuban exile community were seized inside Democratic headquarters Saturday night.

Top Republican officials have vigorously denied any knowledge of or part in the break-in. Democrats have called it "political espionage."

The official Secret Service spokesman refused to provide any background information on Wong or say how long he has been with the service.

The spokesman, however, in response to a question, said there is no record McCord ever worked part- or full-time for the Secret Service.

McCord, 53, a former FBI radio specialist and Central Intelligence Agency security chief until he retired two years ago, was first hired last fall as security coordinator for the GOP National Committee after he was suggested to it by Robert Odle, director of administration for the Nixon committee. Odle could not be reached for comment.

McCord, a resident of nearby Rockville, Md., and the others were arrested inside the sixth floor headquarters of the Democratic National Committee at the posh Watergate Hotel.

Police said they were armed with expensive electronic and photographic equipment and burglar tools. The arrests were made by three plainclothes policemen after a tip from a private security guard.

McCord and the others, all of whom gave Miami, Fla., addresses, have been charged with attempted burglary. McCord is being held on $30,000 bail, the others on $50,000 bail each.

There were these other developments in the case: —The two leading Democratic presidential hopefuls, Sens. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called the break-in and apparent attempted bugging "despicable" and a "legacy of years of snooping." Checks with their respective campaign headquarters in Washington, however, showed a relative lack of concern with their own office security and no immediate plans to have the headquarters tested for bugs.

—Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said in New Orleans he would confer with the party's chief counsel on the possibility of bringing court action.

Supreme Court Forbids Unchecked Wiretaps

WASHINGTON (AP)

— The Supreme Court Monday ruled unconstitutional wiretapping of suspected domestic subversives without judicial permission, and the Nixon administration moved immediately to halt such electronic surveillance.

Within hours after the decision was handed down, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst ordered the termination of electronic surveillance in domestic security cases which conflicts with the court's ruling.

Future wiretaps in such investigations will be placed only in accordance with the decision, he said.

However, Kleindienst added that the administration will work with Congress in an effort to set new legislative standards for such surveillance, saying the court had invited such legislation.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., an administration appointee, delivered the 8-0 opinion against unchecked surveillance power in a case involving a White Panther accused of dynamiting a Central Intelligence Agency branch office.

Describing telephone taps and listening devices as "constitutionally sensitive" and not entirely welcome, the freshman justice said their use must be approved in advance by a judge in order to safeguard privacy and dissent.

In a second major ruling, the court refused to end professional baseball's 50-year-old immunity from antitrust legislation.

The court called the immunity an economic aberration but held that any change in baseball's legal status would have to come from Congress, not the court.

In the wiretapping case, Powell said the Constitution requires, "a prior judicial judgment" and that the 1968 federal Safe Streets Act does not authorize eavesdropping without warrants.

The administration contended exactly the opposite: that tapping and bugging against suspected subversives is permissible under both the Fourth Amendment and the 1968 law.

Powell said the court did not reject these arguments lightly "especially at a time of worldwide ferment and when civil disorders in this country are more prevalent than in the less turbulent periods of our history."

But, he said, the needs of citizens for privacy and free expression are better protected by requiring a warrant before surveillance.

The decision expressly leaves open the question of wiretapping without warrants against "foreign powers or their agents." Similarly, the court left to another day a ruling on the 1968 wiretap law itself, which was declared unconstitutional recently by Federal Judge Joseph S. Lord III of Philadelphia.

The 5-3 baseball decision, delivered by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, means the only choice facing a ballplayer who does not want to play for the club which owns his contract is to quit the game.

That's what former all-star outfielder Curt Flood did when the St. Louis Cardinals traded him in 1969 to the Philadelphia Phillies. His suit against baseball's "reserve system" was backed by the players' union and argued in the court by former Justice Arthur J. Goldberg.

Blackmun agreed that the aberration to give baseball immunity enjoyed by professional sports is "unworthy of the court's unwavering support with 50 years of tradition."

Editorial Comment

The Conservative-Lib Court

Two of the Supreme Court's latest decisions show once again how deceptive the labels of "conservative" or "liberal" can be.

In the one instance, the Burger court ruled that no poor person can be jailed for a petty offense without being offered free counsel. That was a "liberal" ruling for a court now deemed to be weighted on the "conservative" side. The decision in effect extended the limits of the historic Gideon vs. Wainwright decision handed down by the "liberal" Warren court in 1963. It ruled that the sixth article of the Bill of Rights guarantees counsel to persons charged with a felony.

In broadening Gideon to include misdemeanors, the Burger court gave more weight to the protection of individual rights than to the very practical problem its decision raises of how to supply all the free lawyers that will be needed. With 4 million to 5 million nontraffic misdemeanor arrests each year in the United States—one-third of them for drunkenness—the new ruling will impose an enormous strain on the state court systems.

(One solution may be for states to set up special courts for persons charged with drunkenness, drug addiction and similar charges, which involve crimes against one's own person, not against society. They should be dealt with by health agencies equipped to help rather than punish.)

In a second action, the high court split 6 to 3 in reversing a District Federal Court ruling on racial discrimination in private clubs. It found that it is constitutional for a state to issue liquor licenses to private clubs which discriminate racially. By ruling that in so doing a state does not practice or encourage discrimination itself, which the Constitution says it may not do, the court delivered a setback to civil-rights groups' efforts. The decision fell clearly into the "conservative" spectrum of constitutional interpretation.

If there are apparent inconsistencies in the two rulings, perhaps it is because the Supreme Court bench cannot help but reflect the mood of the country it serves. The inner conflicts, crosscurrents of mood, and ambiguities of a pluralized society still in ferment surely affect the mental ambience in which such decisions are made. Against the sweep of events and emotions, the justices can only try their best to hew as closely as they can to the line set forth by the Constitution.

A Rising Number Feel Strikes Hurt

Most Americans—including a large majority of union members themselves—feel that strikes and labor disputes have seriously hurt the country.

This was the major finding of a recent survey by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J. The survey cutting across population subgroups (age, race, region, education, etc.) was one of a continuing series of inquiries into public thinking on unions and labor legislation sponsored by the Labor Law Study Committee.

In this latest survey, a key question was: "In your opinion, have recent strikes and labor trouble seriously hurt the country as a whole, or haven't they had that much effect?"

Of the general public, 68 per cent said that strikes have hurt, 20 per cent believed that they have not and 12 per cent had no opinion. Among union members, 61 per cent felt that strikes have hurt.

The Labor Law Study Committee notes that at each interval since this question was first asked in 1967, there have been increases in the proportion of people who feel that strikes are harmful. The 68 per cent figure represents a 4 per cent increase since 1970.

This does not necessarily indicate a growing "anti-union" bias in America. On the contrary, it could mean that unionism has proved itself and has won its biggest fight and that in a time of inflation coupled with high unemployment, and especially in the face of rising foreign competition, more and more people are coming to believe that there must be a better way to solve labor disputes and achieve economic gains than through strikes.

Daley May Be Last Symbol Of Political Bossism

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI) —When Democrats pros have political nightmares, they dream of a lynch mob spirit in blocs of delegates eager to deny seats to Mayor Richard J. Daley and his Illinois lieutenants at the Democratic national convention.

Daley may be the last major symbol of political bossism in the nation; his conduct at the 1968 convention may have contributed to the Democratic defeat in the presidential election.

But many Democrats wince when they think of an angered Daley organization and its precinct captains sitting on their hands on election day in the pivotal state of Illinois.

As head of an uncommitted bloc of delegates whose credentials are being challenged, Daley is involved in a case representing just one of the many causes of warfare at the convention.

Some Oppose McGovern

The seats of 40 per cent of the delegates chosen so far have been challenged under guidelines written by one of the party's reform commissions. Some probably will be quickly dismissed by the credentials committee and its decisions sustained by the convention. Knowledgeable Democrats find it difficult even to speculate about settling some of the other disputes, particularly proportional representation for young voters, women and minorities.

This requirement was hedged by the reform commission to rule out fixed quotas. Memos from the commission have emphasized good faith efforts on the part of state party organizations to encourage participation by these voters. It is easier to enforce this provision where official state making is involved than in cases where uncommitted delegates are elected in primaries without state making by official party or candidates' organizations.

Overshadowing and mixed with the convention side show battles will be the nomination of a presidential candidate. Even if Sen. George S. McGovern now seems to be riding a steam roller, efforts will continue to deny him the prize.

Many more conservative Democrats regard him as too liberal.

Fights May Develop

Before the nomination and coinciding with the credentials committee work will be writing of the party platform. This will require reconciliation of views and possibly later convention floor contests over planks on Asia, welfare reform, tax reform, and other issues.

Another row may develop over a proposed party reorganization plan written jointly by the two party reform commissions. This calls for a party policy conference of national convention size in even numbered years between presidential elections to draft policy and elect the national party chairman.

Such proposals in past years have been coolly received, especially by members of Congress who feel they are responsible for the party record between elections. The plan would make all Democrats in Congress delegates to the conference. But nothing would compel them to attend if they disliked the project or to follow its advice.

Under the Democrats' new time table, the platform committee draft must be completed and circulated 10 days before the convention opens July 10. The credentials and rules committee reports must be available 48 hours before it opens.

Governors Don't Have Much Effect

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the changing politics of 1972, the many governors in this country are often seen in a confusing blur. Neither their strengths nor their weaknesses are understood.

Right now, look for a moment at the Democratic governors. They are 30 in number, and a good share of them have been very much in the national news.

Starting long months ago, quite a sizable batch endorsed the presidential candidacy of Sen. Edmund Muskie. In that period, the general reaction of public figures and observers was that this was a considerable coup, though some people felt the endorsement tactic reached beyond the point of overkill.

When Democratic party primary voting began and Muskie turned up a loser, the judgment was quick. The word from many sources was that it doesn't do any good for a candidate to have the governors with him if he isn't organized at the grass roots and can't identify well with the issues which are bothering the people.

Some high-placed associates, however, did not agree. Said one aide when the Maine senator was taking his lumps:

"Let's face it. The governors are just about the only thing we've got going for us these days. Without them, we'd be even worse off than we are."

Yet that view didn't make much of a dent as Sen. George McGovern rose out of nowhere and bolted toward the Democratic presidential nomination, riding the waves of voter protest and relying upon a superior organization with almost no big names.

Then, suddenly, a strange thing happened. The governors got back into the bright light. The anti-McGovern sentiment in the Democratic party is, of course, substantial. The governors, widely judged to be useless for Muskie if not a drag on him, were briefly seen as the very fellows who could put it all together and stop McGovern. The theory seemed to be that they can't help you but they sure can hurt you.

Well, naturally that little flurry didn't last long. At the Houston national governors' conference, I made the same fast spin around the Democratic circuit that many observers did. Unhappy though most governors were, they knew they couldn't halt McGovern, and only a handful wanted to try. It would have been like putting thumb tacks in the roadway to stop a tank.

This time, though, some of Muskie's backers were not so kind. They thought the governors' complaints about McGovern came a bit late. The theme was, where were you when we needed you and the song was strikingly different:

"Let's face it. The governors can't organize, they can't run, they can't do anything except get together in a corner and moan."

A few hard-nosed observers, who never believed the governors could stop McGovern any more than they thought the same men could start Muskie, felt the Muskie people should have known better all along. Where did they ever get the idea that governors could help? It's true that, for a long time, the governors in a collective sense haven't been able to muster much political clout. Time was in the Democratic party when just a handful could settle everything. And the Republicans, remembering the governor's big role in Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's 1952 nomination, fondled that dream for years. In fact, they never since have been able to join to do anything.

A lot of these governors in the two parties are pretty able men, in their own realms. Many run their states well, and take a good deal of heat. They get thrown around, and often kicked out. But presidential politics really isn't their bag.

Ann Landers:

Boasting May Slow Teenager's Sex Life

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to say something to the 17-year-old guy who just discovered sex last year and is making it with 12 different girls. He can't understand why he is dead tired all the time and wants to know if it's "normal." His signature was "Dragging My Caboose."

I can tell you a thing or two about that lunatic because I was one of the 12. The reason I know he's the guy is because he was bragging all over school this morning that his letter made Ann Landers' column. The minute he made that statement, his count went down to 11.

I used to think you were a square, talking about virginity and the value of saving yourself for somebody decent, the high price of free love and how the girl always pays whether she realizes it at the time or not. You said the price is guilt and shame, a ruined reputation and finally no self respect.

You hit me right in the face with all of it, Ann, and I want to let you know I'm sorry I ridiculed you and I've learned my lesson.—Slow Study

P.S. The envelope was sealed but I opened it to add this. Two other girls in my gym class just told me they were also among the 12. Now they want nothing more to do with him. This means his count is down to nine. If it keeps up he's going to get plenty of rest. Thanks, Ann.—S.S.

Dear S.S.: Never mind about HIM, honey. Keep this column handy. Some lessons need to be learned more than once.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's brother, his wife and their two children moved a few doors from us last summer. They are a nice family and I know my sister-in-law would do anything in the world for me. The problem is the way they talk. When Vera wants a favor she never says, "Will you please..." It's always, "I want you to..."

Yesterday her 12-year-old boy rang the doorbell and said, "Mom wants you to bring her a five pound sack of sugar when you go to the market today."

My husband was standing there and I asked him if he had noticed the rudeness. He said, "Yes, I did notice it—but it doesn't bother me because I know they mean well." He said it would be better if I didn't mention it because it might create strained relations.

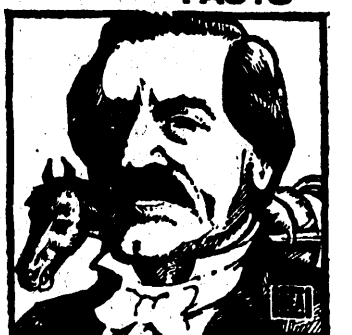

What do you say, Ann? I admit it rankles me and I'm not so sure my husband is right.—Like the Trimmings

Dear Trimmings: I'm not optimistic about the chances for retraining your sister-in-law, but I feel you should certainly say something to that 12-year-old kid. Sample: "How about hooking a please onto that instead of just giving an order?"

Dear Ann Landers: Why would a person you've known for years walk right past you and not speak? This happened to me twice last week (same woman) and I am utterly baffled. This woman is not a close friend of mine but we are in the church auxiliary together and she is always pleasant and sociable at the meetings. Both times when she passed me by she was with another person. It occurred to me that maybe she felt I wasn't worth recognizing since my social status is somewhat beneath hers. Can you think of any other possibility? I feel—Slighted and Hurt

Dear S and H: The other possibility is that she didn't see you. There are thousands, maybe millions of women who have poor vision and refuse to wear glasses. And some of these dames can't hear so well either. So if you said "hello" in a low voice, she may not have heard you.

Memorial Rites Held Sunday For Flood Victims

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — The living bade farewell to the dead Sunday in a simple memorial service in a high school gymnasium.

The people who half-filled the 6,200-seat gym included the humble and the mighty: a weeping young mother with an infant in her arms, to Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, somberly dressed in black.

It was a subdued but moving scene of America: the municipal band playing "The Lord's Prayer," the community choir bolstered by any other townspeople who wanted to sing with them intoning "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past," and the whole assemblage concluding in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

"Death, sorrow, grief and separation have stalked our Black Hills community this past week in power and proportions never known to us before," said the Rev. Burnell A. Lund, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church and principal speaker in the mass memorial for the 216 known victims of the June 9 flood.

"Our challenge seems to be... will we persist in looking downward and backward or will we truly honor these departed ones by maturely pressing forward and looking up into the hills whence cometh our help?"

Rabbi Stanford Adelstein, another of the officiating clergymen, echoed the spirit of reconstruction in the stricken Black Hills city of 43,000 when he said: "Even at the end of this horrid storm, there was a rainbow even though we couldn't see it in the darkness."

A chest-high wreath of carnations and chrysanthemums provided by the Salvation Army and bearing a banner inscribed "From the People of the United States of America" was laid in front of the podium.

Before leaving for Washington after the ceremony, Mrs. Nixon met briefly with a cross section of 17 workers in this city's rescue effort.

"You volunteers have been so wonderful," she told 19-year-old Mike Brunick, who back-packed into the flooded areas, bringing out at least eight persons.

She also talked briefly with Joy Medley, a major in the Salvation Army here. She helped direct that organization's massive relief program, despite the loss of her husband, also a major, in the flood.

COPPER WIRE MISSING

City police received a report of about 800 pounds of copper wire missing from several trucks parked at Stanfield's Service Station, 1900 West Morton, at 8:29 a.m. Monday. The trucks were owned by a Deatur firm and parked at the service station over the weekend.

QUINCY MAN HEADS UFO NETWORK, INC.

QUINCY, Ill. (UPI) — Walter Andrus, Quincy, has been elected as director of the Midwest UFO Network, Inc., a non-profit corporation formed to coordinate investigativ. activities and assimilate information in sightings of unidentified flying objects in 22 states.

The group held elections Sunday after sponsoring a one-day conference on UFOs Saturday.

John F. Schuessler, O'Fallon, Mo., a group design engineer, was elected assistant director; Ted Phillips, Sedalia, Mo., secretary and Fields Freeman, Quincy, treasurer.

Schuessler told the conference Saturday that extraterrestrial intelligence may be outdistancing the United States in space.

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from Such Pain. Also Helps Shrink Swelling of Such Tissues Due to Infection.

In a survey, doctors were asked what they use to relieve such painful symptoms. Many of the doctors reporting said they either use Preparation H themselves or in their office practice. Preparation H gives prompt, temporary relief for hours in many cases from pain, itching in hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink painful swelling of such tissues when infected and inflamed. Just see it doctor-tested Preparation H doesn't help you. Ointment or suppositories.

weddings are performed during December than June but we have to write about Christmas then and tinsel and snowflakes and besides, December doesn't rhyme with honeymoon.

Some time ago I was asked by a reader to list the necessary ingredients of a good marriage. An impossibility, of course. Because when it comes to choosing a partner, it's to each his own, everybody to his own taste, and, you never can tell, can you?

The big tragedy of courtship, as I see it, is that each constantly puts the best foot forward. What a shock when off comes the shoe and sock and the beloved sees our real, everyday foot.

That's when some girls take to crying in the cooking sherry. And when many a boy turns bitter. It does make a person wonder how and why they believed that marriage was all peach blossoms and moonbeams.

The most interesting thing about marriage is that it is a ceremony that joins together what two sets of parents have considered to be finished products. Immediately after the "I do's" the finished products turn into raw materials.

Marriage is a shaping and molding done primarily by two sculptors. They can chip away at each other with hacking motions until they have created a monstrosity. Or, with soft kneadings, pattings, curvings (and even upon occasion, a few sharp punches) create a reasonably artistic monument to their years together.

It's been said that in a good marriage a person finds himself saying "I might as well" more often than dreaming, "It might have been."

Oswald: "One of the first things taught to beginners is the rule of second hand low. Not all the time, of course, just as a general rule when a low card has been led."

Jim: "Once you've taught that to beginners it may take years to teach them that there is many a time to go the other way."

Oswald: "West opened the queen of clubs and continued with the jack after a low club was played from dummy. South Ruffed; entered dummy with a trump and played the deuce of diamonds. East has an almost automatic play of a low diamond."

Jim: "It was almost automatic, but East happened to be Paul Levitt of Fort Worth. Paul's work with computers has kept him almost entirely out of bridge for some time and as far as we know this represents his only appearance at the table this year."

Oswald: "It wasn't hard for Paul to see that his king wouldn't do him much good if he hung on to it and that maybe a quick heart lead was needed. He played second hand high, led a heart."

Jim: "South had no chance to play low. West took his king and cashed the ace of diamonds for the setting trick."

Oswald: "If Paul had just played second hand low South would have been able to set up a diamond for a heart and West's king of hearts would have withered on the vine."

Polly's Pointers

For Separate Checks, Ask Right At Start

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is an answer to the one sent in by Mrs. G.G. and has to do with people like her. I have been a waitress for 25 years and love my work. All waiters and waitresses would be happy to write separate checks if asked when taking the order. Yes, it does take time that could be used turning in an order or picking up one. If you are not smart enough to decipher your own bill, you are too young to be going out to dine. Some people would be very angry and think it an insult if presented separate checks. I could write a book on the subject. Thank you, Polly, for the chance to educate people a little on what it is like on the other side.—MRS. P.L.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to remove an accumulation of soot, dirt or whatever it is that appears on the walls above heat registers and without staining or dissolving the paint. We have tried numerous paint and wall cleaners, but none of them worked satisfactorily. The walls were painted with 100 per cent latex washable paint, so we contacted the paint company, but their suggestion for removing soot failed to work. We would certainly appreciate some help.—HATTIE

DEAR POLLY—I think Mrs. J.C.'s request for a way to remove rust and corrosion from brass is fairly simple. Chrome cleaner, which can be bought at automotive stores and some supermarkets, is a remedy I have tried and liked very much. Good luck to you, Mrs. J.C.—HELENE

DEAR GIRLS—I really think Mrs. J. C. is going to need Helene's good wishes if her brass is in bad shape. She might also try washing the article in warm, soapy water to which she has added a little ammonia. Rinse, dry and then polish with a good brass polish.

Mrs. J.C. also expresses an interest in relacquering such a piece after it is cleaned. If it had been lacquered previously, all the old should be removed with lacquer thinner. Then clean, apply denatured alcohol, let dry and then apply a transparent metal lacquer.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Pressed-paper egg cartons are perfect to corral tiny socks. The individual egg cups can be painted to match the different colors of the tot's socks. This carton keeps the socks neatly in one place and the drawer has a pair of quilt covers and two twin-size that shoots and sew them together. The width is perfect and, if necessary, the length can be trimmed off to the desired size. Not only is this cheaper, but you have a perfect match to your fitted sheets and pillowcases.—MRS. L.K.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea, Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of this newspaper.

Movie bill opposed

MANILA (UPI) —Movie producers and theater owners are up in arms over a senate bill limiting the importation of foreign films. Guillermo de Vega, chairman of the Board of Censors for Motion Pictures, favors it. He said a certain cutback on foreign film imports would be an incentive to local film producers.

Talk

MARBELLA, Spain — This is the Costa del Sol — the Sunny Coast! Less than 15 years ago, the area was still a thinly populated region, its beaches deserted . . . the non-Spanish population then consisted mainly of retired British military men and their wives . . . Then, about ten years ago, a new airport was built in Malaga and the world discovered the Costa del Sol . . . In a little over a decade, it has gone from a tiny, unpretentious, adobe fishing hamlet—actually the fishermen's quarter of Malaga—to a bustling boom town that's a mixture of Copenhagen, Stockholm, a good measure of Miami and Provincetown, and just a touch of Madrid . . . How about being one of the first to make your plans to visit "the Sunny Coast"?

For Today's Primary

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern campaigned for delegates Monday on the eve of New York's final of the marathon presidential primary season, bidding to push his front-running roster at least 200 votes closer to the 1,509 it will take to choose the Democratic nominee for the White House.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, still hoping to head off the towering leader in delegate strength, urged at a Washington news conference that any New Yorker who has doubts about McGovern's positions vote in the primary for somebody else—anybody else.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine picked up 37 uncommitted delegates in Kentucky after a session with Gov. Wendell Ford, a major ally in his revived nomination bid. That had been expected.

New York, with 258 delegate votes, was the last big bloc available. McGovern was the only candidate to field a nearly full slate of entries and stage a significant campaign effort.

All but 30 of the New York delegates were to be chosen in the Tuesday primary. The balance will be chosen by the Democratic state committee in proportion to the outcome of the balloting.

The opposition was an array of delegate candidates who are uncommitted, or who had signed on earlier for Muskie or for other candidates. Rep. Shirley Chisholm had backers on the ballot for 47 convention seats.

The whole process was rendered the more complex because the names of the presidential candidates are not on the New York ballot, only those of the aspiring delegates themselves.

The polls open in New York City at 3 p.m. and close at 10 p.m. EDT. Elsewhere, the voting hours are noon to 9 p.m. EDT.

In a Monday primary, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine sought Republican renomination, challenged by Robert A. G. Monks, 38, a millionaire businessman seeking office for the first time. Rep. William D. Hathaway was heavily favored for the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat Mrs. Smith, 74, has held since 1948.

McGovern's count of first ballot convention votes stood at 1,072.3 as New York prepared to vote.

Humphrey had 383.3 nominating votes, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama 371.

Muskie's Kentucky pickup put his count at 228.05. McGovern, who campaigned with a news conference, a handshaking stroll on a rainy day, and a meeting of labor leaders, said he didn't want to speculate on the New York outcome, but thought he would gain about 200 votes.

Humphrey clearly was poised to term it a defeat if McGovern fell short of that tally.

Board Hires New Teachers At Winchester

The tentative budget, as prepared by Mr. Coughlin, was approved and the date for budget hearing was set at 8 p.m. on August 8 in the office of the Board of Education.

Because of heavy claims the past year, Mr. Coughlin stated the Capitol Indemnity Company which had the pupil insurance coverage has put a $25.00 deductible on every claim. Therefore, coverage from a different company is being obtained.

Mr. Coughlin reported that Mark Raabe would work as janitor at the Manchester school until the status of Clay Spradlin, who is now a hospital patient, is determined.

Mrs. Doris Nicholson was employed as regular janitor at the Alsey school beginning with the opening of school next fall.

Mr. Coughlin reported that an early tax distribution of $40,000 has been received and that the finances appear to be in fairly good condition. He reported on the financial condition as it appears to be for next year telling of the estimated tax revenue and State Aid receipts.

There will not be a regular Board meeting held during the month of July.

Metnick Unit The Metnick Unit Extension Unit met recently at the Extension Office. The major lesson was presented by Mrs. Woodrow King with Mrs. DeLores Cannon giving the selected subject.

The appointed nominating committee consists of Mrs. Clem Anders, Mrs. Wilbur Moore and Mrs. Weldon Fearneynough. The next regular meeting will be July 11 at the First Baptist church. The members of the Town and County 4-H Club will be guests for their local achievements. The County Achievement will be held later in July. Mrs. Weldon Fearneynough, 4-H chairman, will be in charge of the program.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Bernice Whewell, and Mrs. Helen Hubbert. MOD Unit The MOD Extension Unit met Wednesday at the Extension office with Mrs. Ronald Hoots hosting.

Mrs. Jack Sparrow gave the major lesson with Mrs. Loren Barber presenting the selected subject. The new program booklets were passed out. Mrs. Norm Frossard, president, announced that the next regular meeting will be July 12 at the Extension Center at which time the members of the Liberty Hustlers will be guests at this meeting.

The leaders of the club are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Worrell and Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Brown. Parents are also welcome to come to the meeting.

Persons Mrs. Wm. Kinison has returned to her home after spending a few days in the hospital.

Mrs. Ruth Doyle of Jacksonville visited Saturday with Mrs. Harry Montgomery.

Mrs. Clayton Stewart and Mrs. Kathryn Evans of Jacksonville visited Friday with Mrs. Harry Montgomery.

At a Washington news conference, the Minnesota senator likened the New York situation to that in New Hampshire, where the slide of the heavily favored Muskie began in the first of the 23 presidential primaries.

"Is it possible that in New York tomorrow a significant number of Democrats will choose to vote uncommitted or for Sen. Muskie's delegates simply to express their desire for an open convention?" Humphrey asked.

Humphrey said he had bypassed the New York campaign because he has no delegates on the ballot. "But I'm asking here today that those who have doubts about the McGovern position cast their votes for the uncommitted delegates or the independent delegates or the delegates pledged to Mr. Muskie or Mr. (Henry M.) Jackson... or any of the other delegates."

Hanrahan Trial Begins July 5

CHICAGO (AP) — A Circuit Court judge set July 5 as the trial date for Edward H. Hanrahan, Cook County state's attorney, and 13 others charged with conspiring to obstruct justice in the aftermath of a police raid in which two Black Panther leaders were killed.

Judge Philip J. Romiti set the date Monday after he denied Hanrahan's request to have the indictment dismissed because, the state's attorney claimed, portions of it were invalid and vague.

In denying Hanrahan's request for dismissal, Romiti said, "While the indictment leaves a lot to be desired, it is not so badly drawn as to make it invalid."

WASHINGTON — Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, aiming at the New York primary, told a news conference Monday that if Senator George S. McGovern wins the Democratic presidential nomination without moderating his views, the Democrats will face "disaster" in November. Humphrey said the views McGovern now espouses on such matters as income redistribution and defense could destroy the party in the election. (UPI Photo)

Agnes

Sheriff Lee Wilson of Brevard County said damage from tornadoes there would be more than $10 million. Wilson said 60 homes and mobile homes were damaged, and about half of them were demolished. Damage at Merritt Island Airport near Cape Kennedy would be at least $2 million, authorities said.

In the Florida Keys, tornadoes damaged or destroyed some 80 mobile homes and caused an estimated $2 million damage Sunday.

Rising tides swollen six feet above normal swept 16 homes from their foundations at Alligator Point, 40 miles south of Tallahassee, the state capital.

Most residents and tourists visiting this popular fishing resort area scrambled for higher ground. But authorities said numerous homeowners and merchants refused to evacuate despite repeated warnings.

Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the Hurricane Center, said the storm was rapidly losing strength as it swept inland, but that it still posed threats of flash floods and more tornadoes.

Georgia and South Carolina were alerted to watch for "local flash flooding and a tornado or two" as Agnes moved northward out of Florida.

The fishing village of Apalachicola was cut off from telephone communications by the storm, and U.S. Highway 98, the main road leading out of town to the east, was closed.

High winds sent signs cartwheeling through Panama City streets and television antennas, and an unattended amusement park ferris wheel bent under the strain.

Merchants along the Gulf Coast boarded up their stores before fleeing.

In south Florida, the tiny inland community of Okeechobee was ravaged by several tornadoes early Monday. Hospitals counted four dead and at least 37 injured.

Three tornadoes injured more than 30 persons in three other south Florida counties. At Merritt Island Airport, about 50 planes were tossed around like toys by high winds.

The Florida Keys reported another three dozen persons injured by twisters.

Agnes was born as the 1972 Atlantic hurricane season's first storm late last week. After meandering near Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, it started churning northward out of the Caribbean Sea and into the Gulf.

Although Florida's east coast was battered by Agnes' wind and rain, growers in central Florida's parched citrus belt said the storm brought with it "a multimillion-dollar rain."

Tom Osborne, general manager of Florida Citrus Mutual, said winds, clocked at 55 m.p.h. near Lakeland, apparently did little damage to groves.

Owners Of Songcan In Hambo Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — The owners of Songcan said Monday they would add $25,000 to the purse of the Hambletonian if the 3-year-old trotter is allowed to enter the famed race for which he was not nominated and which does not accept supplementary nominations.

If the Hambletonian Society will not allow Songcan to race, then his owners will attempt to set up a match race with the Hambletonian winner, said Leon Greenberg, an attorney for the Slutsky family, operator of Nevele Acres and co-owner of Songcan with Donald Prussack.

Greenberg said the Slutskys are willing to add $25,000 to the Hambletonian purse with the provision that they get no part of the money back.

In other words if Songcan won the race, the $25,000 would be distributed among other finishers.

Greenberg also said that if entry time any owner or trainer of another Hambletonian horse objected to Songcan being in the race, the colt would be withdrawn with no hard feelings.

"I will put these proposals into a legal document and offer it to the Hambletonian Society (at Lexington, Ky.) within a day or two," said Greenberg.

"The system of nominating a horse for a race is an antiquated system," said Greenberg. "The purpose of a classic is to have the best horses race against each other. We are going to fight this system from now on."

A horse is nominated for the Hambletonian while his dam is still in foal. Songcan's breeder did not put up the $5 nomination fee, and so the winner of last Saturday night's prestigious Dexter Cup is not eligible for the Hambletonian.

Besides the Hambletonian at DuQuoin, Ill., Aug. 31, three other prestigious races do not accept supplementary nominations. The Futurity in New York and the Kentucky Derby, both for thoroughbreds, and the All-American Quarter Horse Futurity, the world's richest horse race.

Rescue Squad CALLED SUNDAY

The Morgan County Rescue squad was called about 3:45 a.m. Sunday to assist a Jacksonville woman who apparently suffered an attack at her home.

The rescue squad members administered oxygen to Mrs. Sarah Clark at her home at 304 Howe Street before she was taken by ambulance to Passavant Hospital.

Mrs. Clark was admitted to the hospital for further treatment. Her condition is reported to be "satisfactory."

Jail Sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — Edith Irving surrendered on schedule Monday to begin a two-month federal jail sentence for aiding her writer-husband in the Howard Hughes autobiography hoax. Behind her she left 18 paintings scheduled for auction.

"I am a shy person—I hate openings and things," she said, adding she was glad she would not have to attend the auction. Those for sale were among 33 paintings she executed while awaiting sentence.

Her husband, Clifford, 41, has a 2½-year federal prison term ahead of him for conspiring to cheat McGraw-Hill Inc., out of $750,000 in the Hughes hoax. But his sentence was arranged to begin Aug. 28, so that he can care for their two children while his blonde wife is behind bars.

The Irvings also were fined $10,000 each last Friday by U.S. District Court Judge John Cannelia. They had pleaded guilty March 13 to federal fraud-conspiracy charges. Irving's research, Richard Susskind, is under a six-month state prison sentence in the case.

Surrendering to the U.S. marshal's office, Mrs. Irving, 36, told newsmen she had reassured her 4-year-old son, Neddy, that she had to leave for Switzerland, but would be returning in a few weeks. German-born, she is a Swiss citizen.

The other son, Barney, 2, was too young to grasp such a white lie, Mrs. Irving said.

The great Hughes literary hoax fell apart when the billionaire reclusé denounced Irving's autobiography of him as a fraud. Mrs. Irving later admitted that she assumed the alias of Helga R. Hughes, in order to endorse McGraw-Hill checks in the name "H. R. Hughes." The money was deposited in banks in Zurich, Switzerland.

In return for her plea of guilty in the case, the federal government agreed to try to negotiate on her behalf with Swiss authorities, who want Mrs. Irving on forgery and embezzlement charges.

Challenge Invalid

WASHINGTON (AP) — State delegations to the Democratic National Convention do not have to be proportioned by race, sex or age, a U.S. District Court judge ruled Monday.

Neither individual delegates, groups or slates of delegates shall be barred because of race, age or sex of individual delegates, groups of delegates or slates, said Judge George L. Hart Jr.

He ruled that persons who form a slate of delegates "have the right to put anybody on it they want."

Democratic officials immediately began appeal procedures. It was not known how the ruling would affect the party's convention, which opens July 10 in Miami Beach, Fla.

The ruling came on a suit filed by Chicago Alderman Thomas E. Keane, one of 59 uncommitted Illinois delegates headed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

A Chicago group, headed by civil-rights activist Jesse L. Jackson, challenged the 59-member uncommitted delegation on grounds it did not have the proper proportion of women. They also charged that party officials picking the delegation were elected before Jan. 1.

Hart struck down two party reform rules requiring delegations to be fairly proportioned and also ruled against a third guideline which required all party officials choosing delegations to be elected in the year of the convention.

Under Hart's order, Democrats may require state parties to "take affirmative action" to increase participation in the political process by blacks, women and young people. But he specifically ruled out any challenge to a delegation on the basis of race, sex or age.

Party guidelines, adopted since the 1968 convention, had required that convention delegates include blacks, women and young people "in reasonable relationship to the group's presence in the state population."

There are at least 54 different challenges to convention delegations, affecting 25 states. According to the Democratic National Committee, of the 2,512 delegates already selected, 43 per cent or 1,082 are under challenge.

Most of the challenges are based on delegations not having enough women. Many of the others involve blacks or young people.

They are Australia, India, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sudan, Western Samoa, and, on Monday, the Irish republic, IFALPA said.

More important, IFALPA said, were assurances of backing from a number of governments for even tougher laws that could include an air boycott of countries offering sanctuary to hijackers.

The federation said assurances of support had come from Australia, Canada, India, Sudan, the United States and Britain.

Meanwhile the United Nations Security Council, which had been warned by the IFALPA June 8 that the strike would take place unless there was effective U.N. action by then against hijacking, held a private meeting during the strike.

One diplomatic source said they discussed the statement put forward by the United States confidentially last Wednesday. The statement called on governments to take action to prevent hijacking and to ensure prosecution of hijackers.

The strike was joined by large numbers of flight engineers around the world as well as pilots and ground crews.

United, the nation's largest airline, said its weekend traffic was phenomenal, possibly because people advanced reservations because of the strike threat. It carried nearly 110,000 passengers Sunday, about 30,000 above normal for this season.

Eastern canceled its Monday flights after a meeting late Sunday between an Eastern vice president, former astronaut Frank Borman, and pilot leaders failed to change the pilots' decision to strike.

ALPA's President, John J. O'Donnell, is on leave from Eastern, which has 3,645 flight officers operating out of 50 airports in the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean.

Northeast Airlines said in Boston that it did not know why its 470 pilots decided Sunday night to strike. Northeast operates in the East from Montreal to Miami and flies to the Bahamas and Bermuda, and from Miami to Los Angeles.

The Northeast shutdown eliminated commercial flights to some cities in New England. Most airlines in Western Europe, Israel, Turkey, India, and Latin America were grounded.

All Air New Zealand planes were grounded, but Australia's Qantas operated normally. Pakistan International Airlines and South Africa Airways canceled international flights, but domestic flights operated on schedule.

In Africa, Zambia Airways was grounded and the government-owned Zambian Mail said in an editorial that "this is one strike we will support to the hilt."

Czechoslovakia halted air traffic for one hour to protest air piracy and memorialize the death of a Czech pilot killed by hijackers last week.

In Israel, 450 pilots from El Al and Arkia, plus 500 aviation workers, stayed off the job, closing Lod International Airport, scene of two recent terrorist attacks.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER

TUESDAY, JUNE 20 — Born today, you are extremely straightforward in all of your dealings. You think only to tell the facts as they are, the possibilities as you see them, the advantages as they appear to be in your honest opinion—even when by so doing you might jeopardize some of the benefits you hoped to gain by entering into deals in the first place. Your word can be counted on without a second thought. If you say you will do a thing, you will do it—and if you say you will not, then nothing will make you change your mind.

Shrewd and careful in matters of business, you do not jump into a project without first investigating it thoroughly. You take no delight in risking more than is absolutely necessary and are inclined to judge as foolhardy those who do seem to make a game of taking chances with their material belongings or spiritual well-being. Your main interest is always to bring your efforts to a fruitful conclusion—but to do so with as much gain and as little loss as possible.

To others you appear to be a person of infinite patience. Such is not actually the case, however, for once you know certainly what your goal is in any given situation, you move explodes upon the scene and makes it impossible for you to advance slowly or cautiously. To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birth-day and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Wednesday, June 21

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — The more open you are in the expression of your opinion this morning, the more chance you have of gaining your objective during afternoon and evening.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — Save your energy for afternoon hours when a real challenge presents itself. Don't expose yourself to the criticism of those known to be jealous of you.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — You

At the energy you have stored in your own mind, without undue difficulty you can wait for opportunity this morning. Use afternoon hours wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Your word is as good as your bond—or should be. If it isn't, then you'd better take time out to take stock of your spiritual condition.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — An active day that finds you gasping, perhaps, but fully satisfied at its end. Profits of an unexpected variety are yours by midday.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Take the intellectual point of view as you approach problems which have been hanging over your head for some time now. Give credit where it is due.

REITHER

on Beardstown

By Virgil Reither

BEARDSTOWN — Canadian geese, generally referred to as "big honkers" in these parts, are not often seen in the Beardstown area at this time of year. However between 12 and 15 of the great grey birds were sighted Thursday evening feeding in a field just beyond the intersection of the Boulevard road and route 125 just across from the proposed site of the new Beardstown hospital complex.

Those who saw the geese said they "couldn't believe their eyes."

Bud Murray, of the state department of conservation, said the geese probably were from the Snicarte area. He revealed that a few geese seem to be summering on the state preserve at Snicarte, where, during the winter months virtually thousands of the honkers congregate.

Murray said the geese were of the Canadian variety.

Plenty of Rabbits, Too

All the signs in the Beardstown sector seem to point to an abundance of rabbits for the hunters next season.

More than ever before young rabbits can be sighted in the fields and other areas where there is adequate cover.

Authorities say that the reduction of the fox population has been a great help in bringing on a record crop of "bunnies."

Potpourri

Don Looler, volunteer fireman and rescue squad official, has Pat Ross running his laundry business these days and has accepted a position with Burlington Northern as a brakeman. Don and his bride, Linda King, now live at 11th and Jefferson, having purchased the former Kupfer bungalow.

Miss Karen Hoover, a B.H.S. grad and employee at the First State Bank for the past six years, is resigning and will leave soon for Long Beach, California to make her home. Her parents, formerly of Beardstown, now live near Farmington and Mr. Hoover, formerly a local businessman and later employed on a towboat, now is a mechanic with a strip mining operation.

The Virginia Country club has changed hands. New owner one of the Ashland Striblings.

Deputy clerk Harriet Cooper has resigned.

Mrs. Eva Lynn, formerly with the Chamber of Commerce, has accepted a position with the Beardstown Penny Saver Shopper as an advertising salesman.

Mrs. Carl Wessel and daughter Pat and Mrs. Leona Thompson are home after their annual Florida vacation.

Otto Stinson and Earl Thompson took off this week for Wisconsin after blue gills and crappies in the Birchwood area. And speaking of fishing Earl Weber and Bob Lee have been catching some nice white perch right here at home. Bud Howey is having his usual success with bass from the strip mine lakes in the area.

Echeverria Gets Warm Welcome In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The president of Mexico and his wife met "his people" Sunday—about 35,000 strong—in Grant Park in an emotional and tumultuous visit to Chicago.

President Luis Echeverria-Alvarez, on a week-long state visit to the United States, stopped in Chicago for the day.

Governor Richard B. Ogilvie and Mayor Richard J. Daley were hosts at a civic luncheon in the Drake Hotel, and then the entourage went to Grant Park, where Chicago's Mexican-American community turned out to meet the Mexican head of state.

"Viva el Presidente! Viva Mexico! Viva Echeverria!" the crowd bellowed, as Echeverria plunged into the crowd of people waving red, green and white Mexican flags.

Security personnel strained to keep up with him as he was swallowed in the crowd shaking hands, hugging and kissing those who came out to pay him tribute.

Earlier at the civic luncheon, Daley, noting that the president is the father of eight, said it was especially significant that the city welcome him on Father's Day.

"Our city was created by many ethnic groups," the mayor said. "They built our neighborhoods and have added to the varied culture of our community. We are proud of the Mexican-Americans who live here."

The 50-year-old Echeverria said his days with President Nixon and Congress were fruitful and that he was highly satisfied with the agreements in mutual problems worked out with U.S. leaders.

To Head Local Cancer Society

The annual meeting of the Morgan County unit of the American Cancer Society was held at the First National Bank in Jacksonville June 13.

Robert Hamm was elected unit board chairman; Therron R. Scobbie, M.D., president; Don Middendorf, treasurer; and Mrs. Ross Bradley, secretary. These officers were elected for one year terms.

The following board members were elected for a two year term: professional, A. F. Fricke, M.D., and Therron R. Scobbie, M.D.; lay members, Mrs. Blanche Bienemann, Mrs. Ross Bradley, Harry Dowland, Weldon Fogal, Mrs. Ned T. Jackson, Mrs. Elmer Lukeman, Mrs. Don Mayes, R.N., Mike Pinson, Mrs. Hardin Rimbey, R.N., Robert Staples and Mrs. Sharon Roegge. These board members were elected in addition to the board members whose terms do not expire until 1973.

Mrs. Hardin Rimbey, R.N., was elected lay delegate member to the division annual meeting to be held in September and Mrs. Don Mayes, R.N., was elected as lay alternate.

Therron R. Scobbie, M.D., announced the resignation of Herman J. Koiker, M.D., as unit board chairman, for health reasons, and on behalf of the board expressed appreciation for his services to the Morgan County unit.

During the past year the county organization provided services to many cancer patients and distributed much literature. The memorial report showed an all time high of $3,003 since last September. The Crusade report in addition to the Memorials showed $10,259 which places Morgan County at 37 cents per person. These are the highest crusade totals in the history of the Morgan County unit. Final results will be announced at a later date.

All county units of the Illinois Division of the American Cancer Society are required to meet minimum standards in order to obtain a charter each year and Morgan County has met all of the requirements.

In accepting the leadership of the unit, Robert Hamm expressed his concern for the cancer problem and pledged to continue the fine performance of the Morgan County unit. He said appointment of committees will be made in the near future.

ROODHOUSE CLASS HAS POTLUCK FOR FINAL MEETING

ROODHOUSE — The Boosters of the local United Methodist Church will hold their June meeting next Thursday evening, June 23. This will be the final meeting for the summer. A potluck supper will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. John Whitworth, city, son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitworth, and children, Carrollton, spent the weekend camping at Montauk State Park, Missouri, in the Ozarks where they enjoyed trout fishing.

Mrs. Elmer Houseman, city, Mrs. W. L. Gardiner, White Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Young, Alton, drove to Slater, Missouri, during the weekend where they attended funeral services for their brother-in-law, Curtis Fant. Also coming from Waukesha, Wisconsin, to attend his uncle's funeral was Mrs. Houseman's son, Jim Houseman.

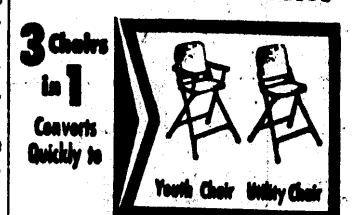

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ballard and his father, L. Ward Ballard, have returned from a twelve-day trip through the southern states with longer stops at Key West, Florida, and New Orleans, Louisiana.

SPORTS NOTES FROM ALL OVER

JACKSONVILLE'S Rodney Jackson won't be attending the Olympic trials in July. Jackson, a senior-to-be at Eastern Illinois University, reported last week that hopes of attending the trials were virtually nonexistent. "I qualified for the trials in the highs (hurdles), but still had to report to the NCAA to attend the trials," commented Jackson. "Everyone with a time of :14.4 or better qualified and I ran better than that all year. But the NCAA closed off the entries in the highs after about 40 or so with a time of :14.0 or under entered. They figured that was the most they could handle for the trials. Then, too, I hadn't reported to them and I didn't have my AAU card. I didn't think my chances in the highs were real good, but I thought I might have a good chance in the intermediates. If I had a good day I could cut it, which takes a :50.5 to qualify. I would have had to go to Seattle (last weekend) in the AAU meet and either stay over two weeks or go back in two weeks for the trials at Eugene, Oregon, and I couldn't cut that financially. I plan to run around here this summer, maybe with the Chicago Track Club, and am looking forward to my last year in college. I want to make the AAU traveling club next year, in which case I would have my expenses paid for."

IT IS INTERESTING to note that after an article appeared here two weeks ago, mentioning the possibility that Jackson might not be able to attend the Olympic trials in Eugene due to the cost, several local sports-minded individuals called this writer to say that they would be more than willing to help in that department.

BRUCE SAMOORE, former Jacksonville High School athlete and currently head track and cross country coach at Arlington Heights High School, served as meet manager at the recent Invitational Track and Field Invitational in Mt. Prospect, Ill. The meet matched the best prep athletes in the country. Samore was a 1951 JHS grad, playing on the undefeated Crimson grid club in 1950, and is currently president of the Northern Illinois Track Coaches Association.

SOME QUESTION arose here recently as to the size of the batter's box for slow pitch softball, with some rule books giving the size as five feet long and other as seven feet in length. A note from the Amateur Softball Association explains that the box was changed to five feet last year, but changed back to seven feet in January. Thus, the change did not get in all rule books in time for the 1972 printing.

MACMURRAY COLLEGE graduate Scott Murphy last week signed a free agent contract with the Baltimore Orioles and was assigned to the Orioles' Class A team at Lewiston, Idaho. The strong-hitting second baseman is the third Highlander graduate in recent seasons to ink professional baseball pacts. Hurler Mark Thomas, still in the Cubs organization, and outfielder Glen Stinson, since released, signed three seasons ago.

WOMEN'S SLOW PITCH softball is following in the steps of the men's game in popularity here. The two YMCA women's leagues often out-draw the men this summer, and the fair sex demonstrates every bit as much enthusiasm.

FORMER MAJOR league standout Joe Cunningham, now working in the St. Louis Cardinals front office, will ride in the parade at the White Hall Fourth of July celebration, representing the club in drumming up support for the Roodhouse-White Hall Night at Busch Stadium Aug. 9. THE BIG PUSH is now on for ticket sales for the annual Jacksonville Night at Busch Stadium July 15. A big surge is needed if the goal of 2,000 is to be approached. The earlier tickets are purchased, from the Chamber of Commerce, the better the chance of preferred seating.

THE STOCK CAR racing dates at Jacksonville Speedway in conjunction with the Morgan County Fair call for afternoon races on July 2 (fender class only) and July 4 (late models only). A LOCAL ATTRACTION this week finds the Jacksonville American Legion baseball team hosting defending state champion Galesburg Saturday in a two-night twinbill. Galesburg has ten players returning from its state championship club.

WE WERE STANDING behind the batting cage at Busch Stadium last Wednesday when the National Anthem began blaring out of a new sound system an hour early, as a test. Out of the runway roared the Dodgers' Frank Robinson and, after a few choice opening remarks, the former Baltimore great shouted to none in particular, "I thought I was in trouble when I heard that. I thought I had missed batting practice and would get fined for missing the National Anthem."

Nicklaus Now After British

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) The next stop is Mullfield, outside Edinburgh, in Scotland. There, on that ancient course, in the British Open four weeks from now, Jack Nicklaus will resume his quest of the unprecedented Grand Slam of golf.

He's half way home. He won the Masters for the fourth time at Augusta, Ga., in April, then took his third United States Open Championship Sunday on the wind-swept seaside Pebble Beach Golf Links.

He won it with perhaps the finest round of 74 ever played, then went into seclusion with his family in the Bahamas to rest and consider the remaining challenge of the Slam, one of the most difficult goals in sports.

PITTSBURGH: Pirates' Manny Sanguillen looks at the out call given by second base umpire Ed Vargo after the tag by Dodgers' Bob Valentine in first inning of game Monday evening. Sanguillen had singled on the play, scoring Willie Stargell, and tried to move to second after the throw to third failed to get Al Oliver.

Cubs Remain Hot, Win In 11th 7-6

CHICAGO (AP) — Glenn Beckert doubled home Don Kessinger in the 11th inning Monday, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 7-6 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Kessinger singled to right off San Francisco relief pitcher Jerry Johnson, 3-5. Beckert followed with a double to left, driving in the winning run. Jack Aker, 2-0, got the win for Chicago by pitching two innings of shutout relief.

The Cubs scored twice in the first on a two-run homer by Jim Hickman, but Garry Maddox' three-run homer in the second put the Giants ahead 3-2.

San Francisco tallied three more runs in the fourth on run-scoring singles by Alan Gallagher and Jim Howard and an error by Cub pitcher Bill Hands.

But the Cubs tied the score at 6-6 in the bottom of the fourth, the big blows being Ron Santo's two-run homer and RBI singles by Kessinger and Billy Williams. San Francisco 030 300 000 00-6 9 1 Chicago 200 400 000 01-7 14 2 (11 innings)

Voting with Blackmun to maintain baseball's legal status were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist. Dis-senting were Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Thurgood Marshall.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. did not participate.

Burger cast his vote with "grave reservations." But he said, "Courts are not the forum in which this tangled web ought to be unraveled."

Douglas, in his dissent, said the 1922 Holmes decision "is a derelict in the stream of the law that we, its creator, should remove . . . Only a romantic view of a rather dismal business account over the last 50 years would keep that derelict in mid-stream."

"I'm sure there will be some sort of new effort made," said the Cincinnati catcher Bob Barton, who was the San Diego player representative before being traced last week. "All we want is for baseball players who are unhappy with their team to be able to go to another."

"The ruling doesn't make a lot of difference and the players were not looking to make utter chaos which complete elimination of the reserve clause would do," said pitcher Milt Pappas, player rep of the Chicago Cubs.

"However, some owners now have an idea how the players feel," he added. "What we are still going to seek at the meeting table is an agreement that will give veteran players some freedom in negotiating. After a certain time with club, say five years or eight years, a player should be able to sit down and negotiate on whether he can get more money if he's worth it, or be free to bargain with another club."

But at least one player representative was critical of the decision.

Pitcher Cecil Upshaw of the Braves, who said he didn't think the reserve clause should be completely wiped out, also said he thought the purpose of the case "was to decide whether this was legal or illegal under American law. It looks like to me that someone failed to live up to his responsibility."

One of Upshaw's bosses, Paul Richards, Braves vice president, called the decision "probably the best thing that ever happened to the player. Without it (the reserve clause) players would be shuttled around, the average baseball player would be penalized in salary and they'd lose the fringe benefits they gain from identity with certain cities."

Cepeda Reinstated By Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, who suspended Orlando Cepeda last weekend after he asked to be traded, released or given away, said Monday the first baseman had been reinstated.

Cepeda was not immediately available for comment following a meeting with Braves' officials.

Eddie Robinson, Atlanta director of player personnel, said he and Manager Luman Harris had met with Cepeda and "everything has been resolved."

Cepeda, who is recovering from a knee operation last fall, complained that he was not being allowed to play enough. He left the club before Saturday night's Braves-Expos game when his name wasn't in the starting lineup, and Harris promptly suspended him.

"I just want to play ball," the 34-year-old slugger said. "I show up and I sit. They (the Braves) say it's my knee. If I limp, they tell the papers my knee is bad. But nobody asks me. It's not 100 per cent but I can play regularly."

Robinson said Monday, "I've had a couple of good meetings with Orlando. Bill Bartholomew (Braves president) and I have conferred several times."

Baseball's Unique Exemption Upheld

Court Rules Against Bid By Flood

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday extended baseball's unique exemption from antitrust laws in a 5-3 ruling against one-time star outfielder Curt Flood.

Rolling off the names of 87 oldtime players and witty lyrical references to "Casey At The Bat," Justice Harry A. Blackmun said he recognizes the immunity is an aberration.

But he said any change in the 50-year tradition, established by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, would have to come from Congress and not the courts.

As a result, baseball will be able to retain its special reserve system, which binds a ballplayer to the team that owns his contract.

Other sports, partly impelled by judicial decisions, have loosened these bonds and given players some freedom to choose the team for which they will play.

Blackmun said Congress apparently has no quarrel with baseball's special status since it has adopted none of the more than 50 bills introduced in the last two decades to change the system.

"I think the decision is constructive in its recognition that baseball has developed its present structure in reliance on past court decisions," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "The decisions open the way for renewed collective bargaining on the reserve system after the 1972 season."

"We will continue in our efforts to remedy the inequities in baseball's present reserve system through collective bargaining," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the major League Players Association, the union that backed Flood in his long legal battle.

Flood brought a $3.1-million damage suit against the reserve system after the St. Louis Cardinals traded him in 1969 to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Essentially, the suit maintained there was no logical reason to treat baseball differently from other professional sports.

Flood sat out the 1970 season. He played briefly for the Washington Senators in 1971 after officials agreed this would have no bearing on the suit. His talents evidently dimmed by the layoff and his advancing years—Flood now is 33—he left the club and is living abroad.

Court Decision Hailed By Kuhn

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U.S. Supreme Court decision on the Curt Flood case Monday was hailed as constructive by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who also called "for renewed collective bargaining on the reserve system after the 1972 season."

The decision, which upheld the reserve clause that binds a player to the club that holds his contract, was received with little surprise by several players. But they also promised to try to change the system through collective bargaining.

"I think the decision is constructive in its recognition that baseball has developed its present structure in reliance on past court decisions," said Kuhn.

"We will continue in our efforts to remedy the inequities in baseball's present reserve system through collective bargaining," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association.

While Ted Simmons, St. Louis catcher who is playing without a contract, said he would probably seek court action against the renewal clause if he has not signed by the end of the season, other players were thinking along the lines of collective bargaining rather than court action.

"I'm sure there will be some sort of new effort made," said the Cincinnati catcher Bob Barton, who was the San Diego player representative before being traced last week. "All we want is for baseball players who are unhappy with their team to be able to go to another."

Olympic Picture Jumbled After AAU Results

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Wottle, fast becoming America's boy wonder in the middle distance races, tipped his cap and sped away from a good 800 field in the National AAU track championships.

The Bowling Green ace won a race he's not used to and four other distance runners also won unexpectedly, jumbling the nation's Olympic picture even more. And Dave Roberts cleared 18 feet in the pole vault, too.

Biggest shocker of the three-day 84th championships came Friday when Greg Fredericks, a 22-year-old Penn State senior, thrust himself into long-distance prominence by taking the 10,000-meter run in 28 minutes, 8 seconds for an American record.

The 6-foot, 155-pounder sprinted the last lap in 55.4 seconds, beating such top names in the race as Frank Shorter, Tom Laris and Jack Bacher. That trio also cracked the old American mark of 28:17.6 by Billy Mills.

Wottle, winner of the half mile in 1:47.3, wore his usual white mesh cap—"just to keep my hair out of my eyes." He took a lead in the final straight and then battled to keep his hat on.

"I wasn't tipping my cap to those guys. The wind was blowing it off. I just reached up and put it back on," said the nonchalant junior who normally runs the 1,500 and the mile.

Roberts, a blond junior at Rice who won't be 21 until July 23, switched to a stiffer pole for his third try at 18 feet one-quarter of an inch and was over cleanly to become history's fourth man over that plateau.

"It's no big thing," he said calmly after jumping all around the place in ecstasy after making the mark. "What I mean is, it's just another height but there's nothing like winning the Olympic gold medal."

The other distance winners—James of the Navy, Mike Keogh of the New York Athletic Club and Jerome Howe of the Mid-American TC—put egg on the faces of the forecasters, too.

Keogh sprinted away from the 5,000-meter runners to win in 15:51.7 and Howe, runner-up to Wottle in the NCAA 1,500 two weeks ago, won the same event this time impressively.

Howe's time of 3:38.2 was the fourth best ever by a U.S. runner—back of Jim Ryan, Tom Von Ruden and Tom O'Hara—and moves the former Kansas State star into prime contention for the Olympic team.

The meet also produced Lee Evans' 45.0 time in winning the 400, Randy Matson's 69-6½ shot put, Rod Milburn's 13.4 victory in the 110-meter high hurdles and John Craft's 54-10 triple jump. Those four men set meet marks. Jay Silvester, the world record holder in the discus, showed up to compete and won the national championship in the event with a throw of 213 feet even.

Reuss, 23-year-old Monday came within three outs of giving himself a birthday to remember. He held the Phillies hitless for eight innings before Larry Bowa ripped a leadoff double in the ninth, then finished with a one-hit 10-0 victory that enabled the Houston Astros to close in on the Reds in the National League West.

San Diego's Arlin fired 1-0 two-hitter at the hard-hitting Pirates, the second straight shutout for the lowly Padres over baseball's world champions, and dropped them into second place in the NL East, one-half game behind New York.

The Mets slipped back into first place when Seaver checked the Reds on five hits for his first complete game since April 26 to become the NL's first nine-game winner and also slammed a tie-breaking home run in the seventh inning. The defeat sliced Cincinnati's margin over Houston to 1½ games.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs edged Los Angeles 5-4 on Don Kessinger's 11th-inning single, Montreal's Mike Torrez tossed a two-hitter to beat Atlanta 2-1 and San Francisco trounced St. Louis 8-2.

Reuss allowed only four base-runners, all on walks, until Bowa ripped a 1-1 pitch down the third base line to end his no-hit dreams.

"It was a good pitch," Reuss said, "a low fast ball. I kind of had mixed emotions, but it did take some of the pressure off. I just said to myself it was over and I had to get the next three men out."

The Astros backed Reuss with a 14-hit attack, including two doubles and a home run by Cesar Cedeno.

Clay Kirby has had little enough to cheer about this season but it was Pittsburgh that had a lost weekend.

"When you beat the Pirates two out of three it's got to be a heck of a weekend," chortled manager Don Zimmer.

Clay Kirby blanked the Pirates on nine hits Saturday night and Arlin limited them to singles by Vic Davalillo in the fourth and Richie Hebner in the eighth. Jerry Morales led off the game for the Padres with a double off Bruce Kison and came around with the only run on infield outs by Fred Stanley and Leron Lee.

New York's Seaver, who has been struggling of late despite a 9-3 record, walked the first two Cincinnati batters and surrendered a run on Tony Perez' infield hit, then slammed the door on the Reds.

The skidding Dodgers took a 4-1 lead against the Cubs' Ferguson Jenkins on two-run homers by Frank Robinson and Billy Grabarkewitz. But Randy Hundley's two-run homer in the seventh started Chicago's comeback and doubles by Glenn Beckert and Jim Hickman tied it in the eighth.

In the decisive 11th, Ron Sant singled with one out, Hundley walked and with two out Kessinger delivered his game-winning single off Pete Mikkelsen.

Montreal's Torrez held the Braves hitless until Earl Williams beat out a punt in the fifth. Meanwhile, Mike Jorgensen and Boots Day delivered run-scoring singles for the Expos before Atlanta scored its only run in the sixth on Felix Millan's triple and Ralph Garr's sacrifice fly.

Rookie Ed Goodson lashed a two-run tie-breaking pinch single in the eighth inning and Dave Kingman rocked a two-run homer in the ninth as the Giants rallied to beat the Cardinals.

Way Takes Park Open By 2 Shots

Playing steady golf throughout the tournament, Mike Way maintained his two stroke advantage and captured the championship of the annual Nichols Park Open Golf Tournament Sunday afternoon.

Way, a sophomore-to-be at Illinois College, swept his first Park Open crown by firing a four-over par 70 Sunday for a 72-hole total of 277. Russ Mosley, who entered the day two back, matched the 70 for runner-up honors. Way went around in 35:35 to Mosley's 36:34.

Bill Kline, who fired his second straight 69 to move up in the field, and Bob Neff tied for third spot at 284, with Mickey Little eight back at 285.

Best round of the day was Tom Gee's one-over 67, moving him up to a tie for seventh with defending champion Jim Reynolds.

Stan McEvers captured the first flight honors with a 72 for a 295 total. Jay Correll had a 71 for 302 and runner-up honors, with Gary Church's 75 good for 303 and third place.

The fourth round and tournament totals in the championship flight:

Mike Way	70-277
Russ Mosley	70-279
Bill Kline	69-284
Bob Neff	71-284
Mickey Little	72-285
Steve Bockemeier	72-286
Tom Gee	67-287
Jim Reynolds	71-287
Bud Vandiver	70-288
Gene Price	74-288
Duane Hess	73-289
Barry Bringham	73-290
Jim Buckley	75-293
Frank Harris	72-293
Dave Eldridge	75-300
Tom Kline	81-302

Elder Nets Golden State 400 Again

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Ray Elder is finally getting his message across to the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's top stars from Dixie. "There is still some gold in California but it belongs to me."

Elder, the racing farmer from Carruthers, Calif., beat the big guns from NASCAR's elite Grand National circuit for the second year in a row Sunday, driving his Dodge to an impressive victory in the Golden State 400 at Riverside.

The 240-pound, 6-2 Elder, currently well out in front in defense of the Grant National West title he won last year, was paid $11,625 from the $83,000 purse.

Second place went to Benny Parsons in a Mercury, third to Donnie Allison in an American Motors Matador, fourth to James Hylton in a Ford and fifth to Carl Joiner in a Chevrolet.

Another Californian, George Follmer of Arcadia, also got a message across: He's going to be tough to dethrone in a headlong dash toward the championship in the Sports Car Club of America's Trans-Am road racing series for small sports sedans.

Follmer, whose six triumphs in nine starts was the best record of any pro driver in the U.S. last year, drove a Javelin to victory in the Trans-Am half of a doubleheader at Watkins Glen, N.Y. He was paid $4,000.

The 35-year-old Follmer, selected for the All-America driver team in 1971, now has won three of the four Trans-Am races and appears headed for his first national title.

He grabbed the lead on the 18th circuit of the 3.3 mile Watkins Glen Grand Prix course and never was headed. He averaged close to 100 miles per hour in finishing half a lap ahead of Jerry Thompson in a Mustang.

In Sunday's second half of the Glen twin-bill, Australian Graham McRae was the overall winner in a Leda machine powered by a domestic stock block engine. McRae won the second of two heats and placed fourth in the first for take-home pay of $20,000.

Second place over-all went to Lothar Motschenbacher, who had a sixth-place finish in the first heat and was runner-up to McRae in the second. Skip Barber was third over-all.

In other weekend activity, Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil increased his points lead in the world driving championship by winning the Italian Grand Prix for Formula 1 cars at Vallelunga. He drove a Lotus.

Second place went to Andrea de Adamich of Italy and third to another Italian, Nanni Galli. Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif., won a 100-mile race for NASCAR's older model sportsman cars at Riverside Saturday—his first triumph in four years.

Home Toward Slam

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus stood like a blond colossus atop the pinnacle of all golf Monday—beside the late Bob Jones and halfway home toward an almost unthinkable Grand Slam—but the experience isn't exactly what he had imagined.

"Bob Jones always was my idol and, as I was growing up, I talked about equalling his record of 13 major championships," the powerful 32-year-old shotmaker from Columbus, Ohio, said after winning his third U.S. Open title and his 13th major crown in gusty Pebble Beach winds that blew down all other challengers.

"I thought about it and I worked for it but I never expected it to happen," he continued, discussing Jones' proud record set in the Golden Twenties. "Now that I've got it, I have a funny feeling."

Winner of the Masters and the U.S. Open, the first two legs of the unprecedented professional sweep which no man has accomplished, Big Jack now must set his sights on the British Open at Muirfield July 12-15 and the American PGA at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Mich., Aug. 3-6.

The final round over the 6,812-yard, par 72 Pebble Beach course that snakes along the crashing waves of the Pacific Ocean was played in conditions too foul for man or beast.

The winds whipping off the ocean reached gusts of 30 miles an hour. The postage stamp greens were hard as concrete and slick as marble. All of the competitors, including Nicklaus, found themselves playing out of craggy canyons and off of rocky beaches.

Twenty-eight of the 70 survivors failed to break 80. Two-time champion Bill Casper had a score of 300. Two other past winners, Orville Moody and Julius Boros, were at 301 and 305, respectively.

Former Masters champion George Archer shot an 87 for 312. Tony Jacklin, the Briton who won both the British and U.S. titles in the space of a year in 1969-70, had a nine on a par four hole, needing three strokes to move the ball four inches in the rough.

Even Nicklaus had a double bogey—on the 10th—in shooting a final round 74 for 290, the second highest winning score in the Open since 1935.

He won by three shots over Australian Bruce Crampton, who shot 76 for 293 with the resurging but frustrated Arnold Palmer a disappointed third with a 76 for 294. Defending champion Lee Trevino, only five days out of a hospital, played in a two-some with the awesome Nicklaus and finished with a 78 for 295, tying another Mexican-American, Homero Blancas, who closed with a 75.

"I can't recall a day when we almost were not playing golf out there," Nicklaus acknowledged afterward. "Skills were almost totally eliminated. The greens were dead. There was not much, if any, water on them and they had been rolled."

"The greens had different speeds. If you made a putt, it was luck. It was a matter of avoiding three-putt greens."

Nicklaus, at even par 216, started the final round with a one-stroke lead over Trevino, Crampton and Kermit Zarley with Palmer and young John Miller two strokes back at 218.

At one stage in the early going, at the fifth hole, after consecutive bogeys by Nicklaus, Zarley and Palmer pulled into a brief tie with the leader, Palmer having sunk a 30-foot putt for a birdie at the third.

Nicklaus, dressed in a yellow sweater to match his unruly blond locks, stood up against the elements like a stanchion of steel—increasing his advantage to three strokes—until he reached the 10th which winds a zig-zag course along Carmel Bay.

There Nicklaus took a double bogey six and suddenly it appeared that a battle might be in the making on the treacherous finishing holes.

"I was hit by a gust of wind on the backswing," Jack said. "I came off the ball and sliced onto the beach where I had an unplayable lie. I hit my third into the bank, chopped out to within ten feet and missed the putt."

Palmer said he realized that Nicklaus had gone over the bank and he took encouragement.

"I thought I had a chance," Palmer, 42, who hasn't won a major crown since the 1964 Masters, said. "Then I missed an eight foot putt at the 14th. That, for me, made the difference."

"I made too many mistakes, especially in driving. I missed my drives on six holes, five of them on the back nine which in the earlier rounds I had played better than the front nine."

Nicklaus hit his climactic shot on the hazard-pocked, 218-yard 17th. The ball cut through the air, hit the pin, almost dropping for a hole-in-one, and spun six inches away. Nicklaus had only five inches to putt for a birdie that slammed the door. He played the picturesque, 540-yard 18th casually, three-putting for a bogey to still win by three shots.

Blackman Withdraws Name For AD

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois football coach Bob Blackman has withdrawn his name from consideration for the university's athletic directorship saying he wants to work instead at bringing the Illini a Big Ten football championship.

"Timing was the crucial thing in my decision," Blackman told a news conference Sunday. "If this came up a few years from now, it would have been ideal for me."

"But right now, we have so much to do to bring Illinois a Big Ten football championship."

Blackman, 52, had been considered one of the top prospects to fill the directorship left open by the resignation of Gene Vance, effective July 1. Blackman will start his second year as head mentor at Illinois this fall.

The former Dartmouth College coach said he was "distressed" at a Chicago newspaper report which said he was "in" as athletic director because of a "power play" he was leading. He said he had "bent over backwards" to avoid such maneuvers.

"A lot of people are strongly behind me and a lot of other people have a strong feeling that one man shouldn't do both jobs," Blackman said. "Right now we need to have the type of man everybody can get behind."

A committee seeking a successor to Vance has narrowed the hunt to about five men. A final selection is expected in July.

Dermatologists say the teenage girl who bakes in the sun day after day in the summer probably will have leathery-textured skin by the time she is in her forties.

Wallace Handed Superb Father's Day Present

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — George C. Wallace's doctors have handed him a superb Father's Day present: word that he has a 90-percent chance of being able to move about with assistance within six months.

White Sox Have Look Of Contender

BOSTON (AP) — The Chicago White Sox, led by a three-man pitching rotation headed by workhorse Wilbur Wood, are proving a legitimate pennant contender under popular manager Chuck Tanner.

"I'd say we have a pretty good team and are competitive," Tanner said with a smile Sunday after the White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-4 to take the rubber of a three-game series.

"Don't forget, we're just starting our second year of a program planned when I became manager," Tanner said. "We had one of the worst clubs in baseball and my goal was to go from last to first. We've made many changes which have helped."

"Now we've got guys who can hit the ball, a threat right down the lineup. We've also got speed and, of course, we've been getting the pitching."

The White Sox finished third in the American League West in Tanner's first year in 1971. Now, with tremendous added punch with the acquisition of slugger Dick Allen, they're pressing the Oakland Athletics for first place with a 33-21 record.

Tanner has been getting along with three starting pitchers. Wood has started 18 times, compiling an 11-4 record and a 1.91 earned run average. Right-hander Stan Bahnen has a 9-7 record in 17 starts, and right-hander Tom Bradley a 7-3 mark in 16 appearances.

Rookie southpaw Dave Lemonds has started Chicago's other three games without being involved in a decision.

Wood, who defeated Boston Saturday, will come back from two days' rest Tuesday night, opening a series with the Brewers in Milwaukee. The southpaw knuckleball artist is well ahead of his pace of last year, when he won 22 games.

"Wood is just amazing," Tanner said. "I'll start him with two days' rest as long as he feels he can do it. I have him down to start three times in the next week. However, Lemonds will start a game next weekend in Texas."

Allen collected a pair of singles Sunday, but Walt Williams and Rick Reichardt hurt the Red Sox the most. Williams had three straight singles, stole three bases, scored twice and drove in a run. Reichardt drove in four runs, three with a homer capping a five-run third inning.

"You try to stop a guy like Allen and other guys like Williams and Reichardt kill you," Boston coach Eddie Popowski moaned. "Chicago has a good ball club, but Oakland looks awfully tough in that division. Let's wait until mid-July and see what happens."

ernor's physicians indicated he will be able to attend next month's Democratic National Convention.

But they said there is less than a 50-50 chance he will ever be able to walk normally again. Chances are better, they implied, that Wallace will be able to partially conquer his paralysis to the extent that he could walk a few steps with the aid of braces and crutches.

They stressed an even-more-likely prospect: that Wallace will be able to stand unassisted and to move about with the help of crutches and braces "by swinging along, rather than walking," even if the paralysis persists. This would mean he would not have to spend the rest of his life in a wheelchair.

These possibilities were outlined at a news conference several hours after completion of the 90-minute operation to remove the bullet.

Wallace was shot several times May 15 as he concluded a rally at Laurel, Md., in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Dr. Stacy Rollins, the Holy Cross Hospital neurosurgeon who headed the seven-man operating team, said Wallace's spinal cord—the telephone-cable-like rope of nerve fibers that transmits nerve messages between the brain and the rest of the body—was bruised but intact.

While foreseeing that Wallace most likely will be spared

Cass Officials In Turmoil Over County Payroll

BEARDSTOWN—Cass county officials have instigated court action in connection with the alleged failure of County Clerk Gus H. Carls to follow instructions in making salary payments.

A writ of mandamus is sought by State's Attorney Walter Farrand and County Board Chairman Bob Patterson to force compliance with a resolution of the county board setting up a central payroll fund. This provides that the county treasurer sign all payroll checks, a plan different from procedures in the past when both the county clerk and county treasurer signed them.

Stipulations in the resolution require the county clerk to draw up warrants on the board established payroll fund which would be refunded by the board at regular intervals.

Attorney Farrand said that county officers and employees did not get their last paychecks. He reportedly said also that a summons could not be served on Carls last weekend. One report indicated Carls and his wife were out of town.

The resolution setting up the new payroll fund also directed that other county workers receive an increase in pay. This would include all but employees of the county clerk who had previously received pay boosts.

The clerk's deputies had refused to work for several days when a question of their pay increases was raised.

Carls, a former county board member and former chairman himself, is reportedly not in agreement with the new system.

wheelchair existence after intensive rehabilitation training during the next six months, Rollins said "a wheelchair would be an appropriate thing" for the governor's now-virtually certain appearance at the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach next month.

And, how long—from a physical standpoint—could he remain at the convention if he goes?

"If he is nominated, he could stay as long as need be," smiled Dr. Hamilton Hutchinson of Montgomery, Ala., the governor's personal physician.

SBA Counselors To Man Booth At Western Fair

Robert A. Dwyer, midwestern regional director of the Small Business Administration, announced today that SBA officials will be available for counseling during the entire run of the Western Illinois Fair at Griggsville, June 29-July 4.

According to Dwyer, the officials will man a booth at the fair and will be "ready and willing to answer any and all questions about the SBA and how it may be of help to the people of Illinois."

Dwyer said the booth also will be stocked with an ample supply of printed information about SBA programs.

The director said the placement of officials at the fair is part of a concerted effort the SBA is making in Illinois to familiarize residents of smaller communities and rural areas of the aid the agency may provide them.

"For too long," Dwyer said, "the small towns and rural communities of this nation have been getting the short end of the stick economically speaking. 'Something must be done to reverse this and I believe the SBA is capable of playing a major role in this reversal.'"

According to Dwyer, "many SBA programs seem tailor-made to provide the spark which can rekindle the economies of so many of our smaller communities."

"But," he added, "the people of these communities must be made aware of these programs. It is this awareness that we hope to develop through our appearances at fairs throughout Illinois."

LOAMI MAN ARRESTED MONDAY IN SPRINGFIELD

An area man was arrested early Monday in Springfield and is being held for narcotics charges.

Jay Dodd, 23, of Loami was arrested while sitting in a truck near 9th and Edwards in the capital city about 2 a.m.

Springfield police say they found a plastic bag containing marijuana and a quantity of white pills in a bottle with no label on it. The plastic bag and unlabeled bottle were in Dodd's truck.

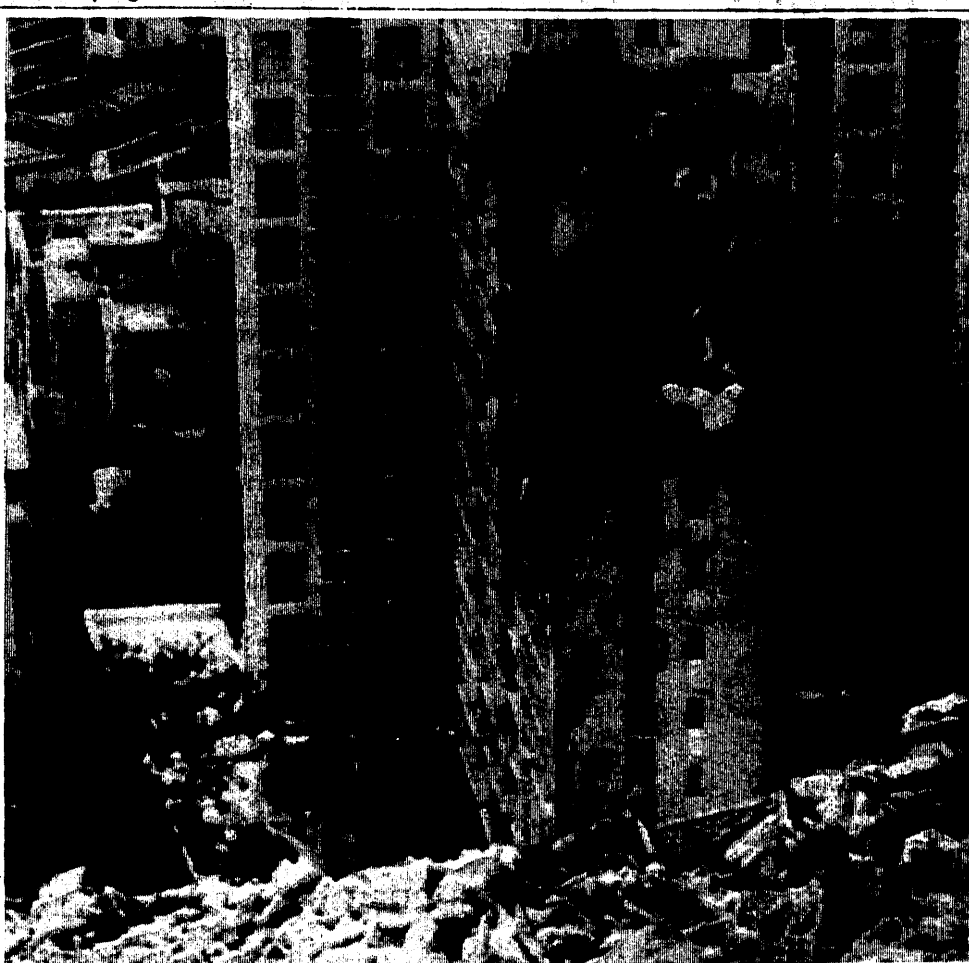

Dodd is being held on an "illegal possession" charge at the Springfield city jail. Specifically Dodd is charged with violating the cannabis control act and the controlled substance act.

IT RUNS IN THE FAMILY — Joena Ellen Smith of Route 5 is shown with her father, F. Byron Smith, in front of the family airplane just after Joena received her private pilot's license. Joena is the third member of the Smith family to receive an FAA pilot's license and received her flight training at Jacksonville municipal airport. Her instructor was Brian Patterson. Her mother, the late Jean Smith, was the first woman resident of Morgan to hold a private pilot rating.

Joena graduated from Franklin high school, received her bachelor's degree from Western Illinois University and masters degree from SIU. She is a faculty member at ISD.

Dad Smith is a member of the Board of County Commissioners and has been flying since 1938.

Leo Afraid To Make Any Change Now

CHICAGO (AP) — Leo Durocher doesn't like doing the double duty of managing and coaching, but he's simply too superstitious to make any changes.

With Leo coaching at third base, the Chicago Cubs have put together their longest winning streak of the season—five straight, including Sunday's 5-4 victory over Los Angeles in 11 innings.

Leo was caught in the coaching trap when Pete Reiser recently became ill. Reiser has been back in good health for several days, but Leo, admitting "I'm making mistakes," will remain in the coaching box until the streak is over.

With two outs in the 11th inning and Ron Santo on second base, Durocher signaled to Santo to run all the way if Don Kessinger got a hit despite the fact the Dodgers outfielders were playing in.

"I couldn't play safety first in that spot," said Durocher. "But if Bill Russell comes up clean with the ball and makes a good throw, Santo would have been out by a mile, and I think those fans would have come down on the field and lynched me."

Kessinger hit a sharp liner to left, and Santo took off for the plate with the winning run. Russell bobbled the ball and there was no throw to the plate as the Cubs swept the three-game series.

"We're playing good ball," said Durocher. "We're at the same peak we were when the strike came, and then it took us another three weeks to get ready."

"But we're playing great; and, as I've said before, this is the best club I've had since I've come to Chicago."

The Cubs started the season losing nine of their first 11 games while Durocher was sidelined with a virus. Since he rejoined the club on April 29, the Cubs have put together a 30-13 record and are back in contention in the National League East, trailing the first place New York Mets by 3 games and Pittsburgh by 2½.

"Managing and coaching is awful tough," said Durocher. "It's hard to keep up. I made a mistake today when I had Paul Popovich pinch hit in the eleventh. I should have used J. C. Martin, who hits left handed, instead of Poppo. Then I would have had a switch hitter on my bench if the game hadn't ended. But J.C. was in the bullpen, and I never even thought of looking over there."

One sister, Mrs. Edna Plerson of Jacksonville, also survives.

One son, three sisters and one brother preceded in death.

The deceased was a member of Westfair Baptist church.

WASHINGTON (AP) — While most Democratic politicians are absorbed in the fight to pick a presidential candidate, a far-reaching plan to reshape their party is moving smoothly ahead.

The plan would establish a national Democratic party in which members would formally enroll and voluntarily pay dues, and a national policy conference to map party programs between conventions.

It would make the party chairmanship a full-time, well-paid post, triple the size of the national committee to make it more representative, and bring grass-roots Democrats into the leadership structure.

"We're trying to make the party bigger than its candidates," says Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., chairman of one of the two reform commissions that drafted the proposal. "Now it is so oriented to the presidential election that when we lose the party becomes bankrupt and when we win it becomes moribund."

A key aim is to put the party on a stable, permanent financial base.

Despite the explosive force with which such a reform would hit the Democratic party it has attracted little attention and less opposition.

That may all change this week, however, as the plan goes before the Rules Committee of the Democratic National Convention at a meeting beginning Thursday in Washington.

The Rules Committee will be asked to clear the proposed party charter for presentation to the 1972 convention in Miami Beach next month, and any opponents will have a chance to express their views.

The most controversial provision in the plan is the one that would establish a new Democratic party. Only officially enrolled members of the national party could participate in elections for delegates to Democratic conventions or the off-year policy conference.

The plan calls for creation of a national membership and finance council which would be responsible for directing campaigns to sign up members and collect dues on a state-by-state basis. States would be assigned quotas for financial support of the national party, and those failing to meet their quota would lose voting privileges in the national committee.

In the drafting sessions of the Commission on Rules and the Commission on Party Structure, which jointly wrote the charter, the membership and dues proposal drew fire from liberals who said it would shut out the poor and the independent-minded.

27-Year-Old Doctor Becomes AMA Delegate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 27-year-old doctor has made medical history by becoming the first member of the American Medical Association's powerful House of Delegates to represent the nation's interns and budding specialists.

Dr. Eugene Ogrod, training to be an internal medicine specialist at the Sacramento, Calif., medical center, took his seat Sunday among the 240 other members of the House of Delegates as the AMA opened its annual convention. The average age of members of the House of Delegates is 50.

Ogrod's presence and that of his alternate, Dr. Neville Connell of Washington, D.C., is a significant departure from past AMA conventions, a reflection of a reform movement afoot to give the nation's 50,000 interns and residents a voice in AMA affairs.

Ogrod, who was graduated from Stanford Medical School in 1970, said his presence in the House of Delegates is only a first step.

He said these doctors want more say in how they are trained as interns and for their specialties; they want a voice in solving medicine's problems of delivering health care to the poor and the elderly; and they want a role in deciding how organized medicine should react to legislation affecting medical practice.

AMA critics have been calling several years for representation in the AMA of interns and residents, whom the critics called medicine's disenfranchised doctors. The House of Delegates voted last year to allow an interns-residents delegate this year; and Ogrod and Connell were named in a caucus Saturday.

VANDALISM AT CHURCH

Jacksonville police were notified Sunday of some criminal damage to property at the Congregational Church, 520 West College Avenue.

The vandalism involved a number of windows being broken on the east side of the church. Some rocks were found inside the church.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the individual investor a dying breed, about to be buried in the avalanche of trading emanating from the big institutional traders who now account for most of the volume on the New York Stock Exchange?

That notion is broadcast from time to time, and not without some justification. Many individual investors of long standing have canceled out their accounts in recent years. Many others are steady sellers.

Meanwhile, the growth of institutions such as mutual and pension funds has been phenomenal. And their aggressiveness as traders has grown too.

During the 1965-1971 period, institutional volume grew by what Dr. William Freund, NYSE chief economist, calls an "astounding 25 per cent a year" and now accounts for 68 per cent of all trading, in dollar terms.

But, he points out, all that growth isn't at the expense of the individual investor. The latter's transactions grew 8 per cent a year in the same period, and new accounts for 32 per cent of trading.

In other words, it is true that the institutions are more dominant in the market than they were, and it is true that the individual investor carries less trading weight than before.

But it isn't true that there are fewer individual investors now than at any earlier period. The number of such investors is now estimated at 32.5 million, up from 31.9 million last year.

One misimpression about the market is that mutual funds are the most powerful institutional traders. Not so at all. They are the most obvious, because they sell shares to the public, but they are from the biggest.

That distinction belongs to the private noninsured pension funds, which now have more than $125 billion in assets, $85 billion of which is in common stocks.

By comparison, the mutual funds have total assets of about $55 billion, with all but $3 billion of it in common stocks.

Nevertheless, it is these two institutional trading categories that have caused the individual investor to become less and less powerful in the market. Each year these two fund categories are more influential in setting prices.

Not only are private pension funds growing in size, but the tendency now is to seek maximum returns in the stock market rather than from more conservative investments in bonds.

And not only are mutual funds growing in size and number, but they are markedly more active traders than they were 10 years ago. Some funds now turn over their portfolios 100 per cent within one year.

How To Know Money Tree

By CARLTON SMITH

If titles sell books, this one ought to sell a million. It offers instructions on (and is entitled) "Shaking the Money Tree."

Who wouldn't want to know how? Its subtitle is "How to Find New Growth Opportunities in Common Stocks," and that, alas! isn't quite as easy as driving out into the country and finding an apple tree that's ripe for shaking.

The authors (there are two of them), are early enough involved in explaining away the difficulties. For they are hard-headed, long-experienced, top-level professionals in the market, who know there is no easy road to riches, there or elsewhere.

This may be one of the more realistic investment advice books to appear recently, in fact, abstaining as it does from razz-ma-tazz formulas for doubling your money overnight.

"Today, we believe you should aim for a total annual return of 10 to 12 per cent from your common stock investments."

This is the modest goal regarded as realistic by authors Winthrop Knowlton and John L. Furth. And who are they to disillusion us about returns of 40, 60 or 100 per cent a year?

Well, Knowlton was for 10 years a general partner, in charge of research, in one of Wall Street's more quietly prestigious firms, White, Weld and Co. Next he was assistant secretary of the Treasury for international affairs. Now he's president of Harper and Row which, not surprisingly, is the publisher of "Shaking the Money Tree."

Furth was a general partner in a major brokerage firm, Burnham and Co., and is now executive vice-president of E. M. Warburg, Pincus and Co., investment advisers. Collectively, the two authors bring 27 years of Wall Street experience to the job.

They take a conservative approach to investment. They have only a few disdainful words for the "chartists," who try to predict market movements and stock prices with graphs. Their "money tree" is a carefully selected, successful company, solid on fundamentals — "the kind of money tree you can hold and shake for a decade or more."

They frankly divide all companies into "good guys" and "bad guys." Any company is either successful, or it's a "problem company" — and most companies are the latter. The minority of solidly successful companies can be identified by their five characteristics:

— Management's "ability to respond to change is the critical feature." The company doesn't just drift along, but "is in control of its own destiny," adapting to change and taking advantage of it.

— The company is characterized by innovation and creativity. A chief asset is "the power of surprise" in creating new products or services that capture a market.

— The company has a solidly entrenched, commanding position.

tion in the marketplace. It's not easy for competitors to dislodge them, or make them move over.

— There is financial discipline — firm control over costs, an avoidance of spendthrift behavior, a habit of keeping money in its pockets.

— There is a record of consistent, year-to-year growth — not in sporadic spurts, but a planned, driving upward thrust.

Do your homework, find a company that answers to these criteria of success, and you have your "money tree." It's not a method for getting rich overnight, but you can shake it, the authors say, for 10 to 12 per cent a year and sleep well at night.

If that's your investment philosophy, you'll probably find $7.50 worth of market counsel — the price of the book, at bookstores — in the 190 pages in which Knowlton and Furth go into detail on how to find and identify the money trees.

NEW CROP SOYBEANS COME UNDER HEAVY SELLING PRESSURE

CHICAGO (AP) — New crop soybeans came under heavy selling pressure on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

The November option declined 2 1/2 cents a bushel. Soybean oil eased 10 points but soybean meal prices were mixed.

Corn and oats were fractionally higher and wheat lower by 1/4 cent.

Food brokers were some 10 points higher in fairly active trade.

The selling of new crop soybean futures was in part a spreading activity involving purchases of nearby options.

But some of the selling also was attributed to an authoritative commodity statistician from the Middle West. He suggested there might be a few pennies a bushel for speculators who would go short on the theory of a possibly larger crop this year.

Soybean meal advanced some 50 cents a ton early in the session, with most buying in nearby options. Deferreds were down around 50 cents.

There was a lack of hedging activity in corn on the opening. On the buying side were some elevator interests as well as processors and this support extended 1/4 cent in deferred options.

Oats also had good commercial support, but in lighter trade.

There appeared to be little sustained activity on either side in the wheat pit. Commercial selling, however, tended to weaken prices.

After the halfway point, soybeans were 1/4 to 3/8 cents a bushel lower, July 3.48%; wheat was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, July 1.42%; corn was unchanged to 1/4 higher, July 1.21 and oats were 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, July 69% cents.

POTATO MARKET

CHICAGO (AP) — (USDA) — Potatoes arrivals Monday 151; on track 230; total U.S. shipments for Friday 406; Saturday 260; Sunday 18; new-demand slow; market dull; carlot track sales: California long whites 5.50; old-too few sales to quote.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices drifted lower Monday in very dull trading, continuing the uncertain slide of Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial fell 3.23 at 941.83.

On Friday, the Dow lost a little under a point.

Analysts said Soviet demands that the United States end its blockade of North Vietnam deflated hopes of a new Soviet peace initiative after a top-level meeting with North Vietnamese officials last week.

Most investors were off on the sidelines, as also was the case Friday.

New York Stock Exchange volume slipped to 11.66 million shares, compared with 13.01 million Friday.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks dropped 0.13 to 59.91.

Of the 1,716 issues traded, 599 advanced, and 771 declined. There were 30 new highs and 102 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average fell 0.7 to 325.4, with industrials off 1.4, rails off 0.1, and utilities off 0.4.

Rails, utilities, aircrafts, and rubber issues were off. Steels, mail order-retail, electronics, and oils were up, while motors, metals, chemicals, and airlines were mixed.

Seventy blocks of 10,000 shares or over were traded on the Big Board, compared with a revised total of 104 Friday. The largest block traded involved 153,200 shares of Melville Shoe at 31, up 1/4. Most other blocks were considerably smaller.

Berkey Photo was most active on the Big Board, dropping 1 to 24.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index fell 0.02 to 27.48. Of the 1,178 issues traded, 371 advanced and 541 declined. Volume climbed to 3.37 million shares from 3.24 million Friday.

In Over-the-Counter trading, the NASDAQ composite index fell 0.52 to 130.76, and the industrial index fell 0.76 off 0.76 to 140.11.

Who Knows The Balanced Diet?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—You said that a person eating a balanced diet should be getting sufficient vitamins. The trouble is that most of us don't know what a balanced diet is. Unfortunately, doctors do not seem to be aware that many people are financially and otherwise unable to follow doctors' rules. The restaurants and cafeterias don't know either and that is why people have to use vitamins. What is the individual to do?

Dear Reader—You are absolutely right. Many recommendations in medicine are difficult for the public to follow, particularly in the food area. When you go to the grocery store, things are not packaged or labeled in ways that any person without a fairly good knowledge of nutrition will be able to follow diet recommendations. A balanced diet is one that meets all the minimum daily vitamin and mineral requirements as well as the protein requirements. There are several different kinds of proteins which are essential to the body and for that reason you need a variety of protein sources.

Expressed in foods, that means that at least one meal a day should contain a major protein source, which includes lean meats, fish and poultry. For growing people, at least two meals a day should contain items of this group. Egg whites are an excellent source of protein and can be used liberally. Fortified skim milk, low-fat milk and uncreamed cottage cheese are all excellent sources of protein and calcium. An equivalent of one quart of fortified skim milk should be used each day, particularly for older people to be sure they get enough calcium. Nonfat dry milk powder can be used in cooking also as a source of protein and calcium. Mature bean seeds are also a good protein source and cereals contain some protein.

Essential vitamins and minerals are found in fruits and vegetables. Accordingly, the diet should contain daily a variety of vegetables to include a leafy salad and two or three different vegetables every day, like carrots, peas and the colored vegetables. Tomatoes, of course, are excellent in the salad.

It is also wise to have some fresh fruit each day, an orange, banana or apple, and if you are not eating fresh fruit it is more important to have one fresh tomato a day.

Cereal is an important source of vitamins and you can get that from homecooked oatmeal or any of the prepared breakfast cereals and a variety of breads. Unless calorie restriction is necessary, at least two slices of a good-quality bread a day are desirable, particularly if other cereal is not used.

If you follow these general principles, you are most likely going to have a balanced diet. The things you do not need for a balanced diet are sugar and sweets of all kinds and starchy desserts and puddings. The key to a balanced diet, then, is variety, with emphasis on the foods that give you a variety of vitamins and minerals with adequate protein.

Is your family getting a balanced diet? To find out you'll want to read Dr. Lamb's booklet in which he answers your questions about this subject. Send 50 cents to Dr. Lamb, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for "Balanced Diet" pamphlet.

Councilmen Voice 'Change For Better' Ultimatum To Mayor

Thirteen members of the Jacksonville city council were unanimous in their ultimatum to Mayor Dan F. Lahey to "follow and accept some revisions and recommendations in the operation of utilities, or come up with something better."

The twenty-minute special meeting Monday night was calm and attended by the mayor and 13 members of the council, along with several members of the utility departments observing.

Generally, the discussion was led by Alderman Don Votsmier but with agreement on several points voiced by others throughout the meeting.

Status Quo Doesn't Work
Votsmier contended that the present method or structure of the utilities departments hasn't worked. He proposed a change that would divide the present group into three separate entities responsible to the mayor and the council committee, then to the council as a whole.

Votsmier recommended that the sewer and water departments be consolidated under one department head; the electric department be operated with one department head and the office force be operated for all utilities under one department head.

Little Change
In reality, the structure is little different than that which is presently in operation with the exception of the elevation of two employees to the status of department head and taking away some of the responsibilities of Utilities Supt. Robert Jameson.

Votsmier said it "didn't make much difference" what you call these people in question. "You can call them executive vice-presidents if you want to," he said.

Votsmier was careful to explain to the mayor and others present that he would expect the recommendations for persons to fill the jobs in question from the mayor and be presented before the council for confirmation.

Under Advisement
Lahey did not express his opinion on the potential new structure of the utilities departments. He pledged to the members of the council that he would take the matter under advisement and report at an early date. He said it would be impossible to make his report next Monday, but he would make every effort to evaluate the situation and recommendations.

Aldermen Doyle, Scott, Evans and Fernandes expressed favorable comments toward the recommendations of the council. All felt it would be an improvement and permit each department head to concentrate additional time toward improving the task at hand.

The three positions in question are presently held by Robert Jameson, utilities superintendent in charge of everything; Bill Terry, who is already in charge of the sewer and water departments although reporting to Jameson rather than the mayor and council; and Reid Lasley who handles the accounting tasks for all three departments, but at present works directly under Jameson.

Same Price
Votsmier said he had no reason to expect the change would cost more than the present. He suggested that "some adjustments could be made."

After the meeting, Votsmier said he hoped that Mayor Lahey would approve of the proposed changes or recommend something better. "I hope he doesn't continue with his do-nothing attitude as has been the case with the committee he promised 12 weeks ago to help the electric utility department."

The absent alderman was Wilbur DeFratres who is presently on vacation out of the city.

Utilities Superintendent Robert Jameson returned to Jacksonville from what he described as 700 or 800 miles away for the special meeting.

Lahey said he would have to contact the people involved in the proposed shake-up of responsibilities and consider the salaries which must be paid during his assessment of the problems.

The recommendations would apparently dilute the responsibilities of Jameson but permit him time to handle the problems of the electric utility on a full-time basis.

Water Rates
Members of the water committee are expected to have an ordinance ready for first reading Monday concerning a water-rate increase.

The full meeting came on the heels of the water committee special session and that committee gave authority to the engineer and special attorney to draft the increase ordinance for presentation Monday.

The need for a water rate increase may be subject to further argument on the council floor. The committee of the council says the audit report shows the income is below the actual cost of production and the utility cannot continue to pay bills. Jameson says in his opinion a water rate increase is not necessary.

Votsmier said at the beginning of the meeting that he did not know Monday was the mayor's birthday, but had he known might have considered a different night for the session.

The special meeting was called by ten aldermen.

Freeze On Real Estate Taxes Fails In House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Legislation to freeze real estate taxes at current levels through most of the state for two years failed to win approval Monday in the Illinois House.

Rep. C. L. McCormick, R-Vienna, sponsor of the measure, managed to keep the bill alive after it fell six votes short of passage.

With 101 votes cast in favor of the bill, it could have been declared passed as far as it affected areas of the state that have not been granted "home rule" powers under the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, ruled that it would take 89 votes to do that. But Blair added that it would require 107 votes to make the measure apply to "home rule" units.

McCormick said he would ask to have the measure called before the House again and added he believed it would be possible to obtain the additional six votes from among the 22 representatives voting present and 40 not voting.

Those casting votes against the measure, mostly Chicago Democrats, numbered 14.

Blair's ruling underscored the unusual twist that has come into the bill-passing process since the new constitution went into effect.

The bill would freeze most—but not all—real estate taxes at their current rate for two years.

A chief exception is that school districts would be allowed to raise their share of real estate taxes, under the measure, to the minimum level required to qualify for state aid.

Arguing against the bill, Assistant Minority Leader Gerald V. Shea, D-Riverside, told the House that its approval would bar construction of school buildings in Chicago, prevent the refurbishing of police and fire stations and imperil the city workers pension fund.

But Minority Leader Clyde L. Choate, D-Annapolis, urged speedy approval of the measure.

"Unless remedial legislation passes," Choate said, "you're on the brink of the largest taxpayer's revolt that has ever existed in any state."

Opposition to the proposal came from both sides of the aisle.

IRS Tax Help Day June 23

June 23 will be the next assistance day for taxpayers in the Jacksonville area, according to Walter R. Enz, manager of the local Internal Revenue Service office.

Assistance hours are from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 12:15 to 3:45 p.m. this Friday.

"For the convenience of individuals with federal tax questions it is suggested that inquiries be made by telephone," Enz said.

The number to call in Jacksonville is 245-4519.

SHERIFF RECOVERS STOLEN ARTICLES

The Morgan County Sheriffs office reported the recovery of items taken in the June 4 burglary of the Murrayville water works.

The articles include two outboard motors, a gas mask, and some postal scales. These items were recovered about 8 p.m. Monday night by Morgan County Sheriff Harold Wright.

REGULAR MEETING

American Legion Post 279
Tues., June 20, 8 p.m.
Election of officers and
Annual Mtg. of Home Assn.

At Winchester

By Mrs. James Cox
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone 742-3817 or 742-5566)
WINCHESTER — The Board of Education of Unit District No. 1 met recently in the Board of Education office at Winchester. President Dee Bell, conducted the meeting. Minutes of the regular May 9 meeting and adjourned meetings were read with bills being approved for payment.

The following teachers were employed: Ray Archer, industrial arts; Miss Reba Clark, girls P.E.; Miss Donna Deatherage, EMH teacher to replace Ladd who is taking a leave-of-absence; and Miss Janet L. Kormick, speech correctionist.

Mr. Archer comes from Rushville. He has had two years teaching experience and received his degree from Western Illinois University, Macomb.

Miss Clark of Meredosia is a recent graduate of Western Illinois University. She substituted in girls P.E. at the Winchester schools during the last month of school this year.

Miss Deatherage of Waverly has a B.S. in Education from Eastern Illinois University. She has done student teaching in E.M.H. but this will be her first year of regular teaching.

Virgil Coughlin, superintendent, reported that the faculty is now complete with the exception of a vocal and band instructor at the high school.

Partial student support was approved for the following students while attending a recognized public Junior College in Illinois: Robert H. Simpson, Michael Sauer, Gary Watkins and Janet Smith, all to Lincoln Land Community College, Springfield; and Donald Fearnough, Charles Reid and Andy Brown to Spoon River College, Canton.

The resignation of Mrs. Valerie Howell, speech therapist was accepted. She is moving from the district.

Resolutions were adopted for special taxes for fire prevention and safety purposes and for special education housing purposes.

Mrs. Jacqueline Hanback, Board member, reported on plans of the Four Rivers Special Education District for central administrative centers. She explained that a four cents tax could be levied, without referendum, for special education housing purposes. According to her, these funds could be accumulated for a period of eight years to meet housing needs made necessary by State requirements.

Launch Drive For Local Art Fair Patrons

Business and industrial firms of the Jacksonville area again have an opportunity to contribute to the success of the annual art fair by pledging purchase of artistic works of the exhibitors.

The appeal for pledges was launched Monday with the appointment of patron solicitation co-chairmen Arthur J. Lauff of the Farmers State Bank and Trust Company and Gilbert Todd of the Elliott State Bank.

Jacksonville business and industrial firms are being asked to underwrite $1,000 in patron purchases of works of art in addition to $600 in prize money and $200 in purchase awards for the City of Jacksonville, according to Marian E. Patterson, executive director of the Fifth Annual Art Fair to be held in the square July 8 and 9.

Mrs. Patterson explained that patrons will be asked to attend the fair, select a work of art they would like to display in their establishment, and purchase it from the artist. Although the pledge of patron participation is stated in dollar figures, the art fair committee does not wish to expend money on the patron's behalf. The purpose of the patron guarantee is to attract exhibiting artists and craftsmen to the city, as well as rewarding local exhibitors.

Representatives from small, rural districts claimed the proposed rules, which would replace regulations set in 1964, would require the creation of new posts and programs which small districts cannot afford. They asked for less confusing and rigid rules.

Representatives from larger, urban districts, however, deplored the lack of definitive guidelines and evaluation procedures for state review of special education programs.

They claimed the proposed rules would be wide open to local interpretation without any uniformity across the state, making evaluation by the state difficult.

Special education districts are legal units created out of one or more school districts to provide programs for gifted or underprivileged children.

Officials of both groups, however, agreed that if the state requires the local district to provide new programs, the state ought to help pay for them. They also agreed that the proposed rules were loosely written and lacked definition.

The hearing was the first of three planned by the Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, across the state. The panel will be in Chicago Wednesday and in Springfield on Friday.

CARS COLLIDE NEAR GLASGOW
Two cars collided on a country road one mile south of Glasgow about 6 p.m. Sunday.

A car driven by Larry A. Kunzman, 23, of Route 2, Winchester was rounding a curve, apparently across the centerline and took to a ditch on the west side in an unsuccessful attempt to avoid a collision with a second auto driven by Ray I. White, 37, of Route 1, Winchester.

The Kunzman auto left 150 feet of skid marks and ran 64 feet down the ditch before coming to rest according to investigating state police.

White's auto was not seriously damaged and was driven from the scene. Kunzman's auto was heavily damaged and towed away. He was ticketed for driving in the wrong lane of traffic.

Drowns At Naples

A Morgan County young woman drowned Sunday afternoon in the Illinois River at Naples, a short distance south of the Naples Boatel.

Scott County Coroner William R. Boston identified the victim as 25-year-old Sharon Louise Dunnaway, wife of Eddie W. Dunnaway of Meredosia.

Time of the drowning was given as minutes after 3 o'clock. Mrs. Dunnaway's body was recovered about 6 p.m., just a few feet south of the spot where she was last seen.

Coroner Boston said it appears Mrs. Dunnaway was wading along the east bank of the river with her brother-in-law when she was pulled out by the current. The brother-in-law, 14-year-old Kenneth Dunnaway, was momentarily pulled under... then came up and called for help.

Ray Woods of Jacksonville entered the water and... along with Kenneth Dunnaway... grabbed the woman. But, Mrs. Dunnaway apparently panicked, pulled away, and disappeared in the water for the last time. Coroner Boston said Mrs. Dunnaway reportedly was not a very good swimmer.

Mrs. Lula Pepper
Dies Monday
In This City

Mrs. Lula Kramer Pepper, 1123 Elm St. died early Monday morning at Passavant hospital.

She was born Dec. 1, 1897 in Mason County, a daughter of Herman H. and Carrie Holifield Kramer. She married George Pepper March 9, 1929 at Carthage.

Her husband survives, along with a sister, Mrs. Herbert Sinclair of Virginia.

Mrs. Pepper was a bookkeeper with the Jacksonville Quincey Wholesale Distributors before her retirement.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Cody and Son Memorial Home with the Rev. Herbert Buoy officiating. Burial will be in Walnut Ridge cemetery in Virginia.

Friends may call from 7:30-9 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

Five Injured In Head-On Crash
Near Florence

Five persons were injured in a head-on collision at 3:30 p.m. Monday at the intersection of U.S. 36 and Ill. 100, east of Florence.

Taken to Illini hospital in Pittsfield were Glenn F. Olson, 25, driver of one of the autos; Michael E. Olson, one; Ruby M. Steen, 69; and Michele F. Olson, 69; all of Baylis, Ill. Also taken to Illini was Madge A. Rouleston, 60, a passenger in the other car driven by her husband Robert A. Rouleston, 64, of Indianapolis, Indiana.

According to investigating state police the Olson auto was westbound on U.S. 36 and attempted a left turn in front of the eastbound Rouleston auto at the junction of Rt. 100.

Both cars received heavy damages in excess of $3000 each and had to be towed from the scene.

The Olson woman was cited by state police for failure to yield turning left.

Two Pay Fines
Here Monday

Two defendants entered pleas of guilty before Judge Gordon Seator Monday morning to separate offenses and paid fines.

John W. Petri, 28, of Meredosia entered a plea of guilty to a disorderly conduct charge and was ordered to pay a fine of $25 and $15 court costs.

Teresa Hazel, 16, of 9 Morningside Drive entered a plea of guilty to theft involving a shoplifting incident at Tempo and paid a fine of $25 and $15 court costs.

ALEXANDER GIRL EARNS

Property Tax Bill Passed In Statehouse

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House passed, 138-0, Monday legislation to place 1972 personal property tax payments in escrow pending a ruling on the constitutionality of the levy by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sponsored by Rep. John Matijevich, D-North Chicago, the measure provides that the clerk of each county must be ready to refund the money if the tax is overturned.

Some counties already have taken steps to insure that refunds will be available if the high court wipes the tax off the books.

The tribunal agreed to hear an appeal, filed by state officials, of a ruling by the Illinois Supreme Court that reinstated the tax on individuals after it was removed by a November 1970 referendum.

Matijevich termed the bill, which now goes to the Senate, "an automatic protest by legislative action."
